

Evacuation Begins ... U.S. Closing Saigon Embassy

SAIGON (AP) — The United States began the final evacuation of Americans from Vietnam Tuesday and officials said the U.S. Embassy would close, ending 30 years of American involvement in the Indochina war.

Buses began carrying Americans to pickup points to await helicopters to fly them to the U.S. Navy carriers waiting off the coast.

High-ranking South Vietnamese military and police officials, fearing they were marked for death by the Communists, fled with them.

An eerie stillness settled on the South Vietnamese capital. It appeared to be waiting for the Communists to take over at any time.

A man walked the streets alone. An occasional motorbike rider passed.

Some frightened Vietnamese clung to the few Americans who remained, most of them newsmen.

Government banners flapped lazily in the breeze. "Lady Tramp" said the sign on a movie house marquee.

President Duong Van Minh ordered all Americans working for the U.S. defense attaché's office out of Saigon in 24 hours. This, plus a devastating rocket attack on Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base, brought the order from the U.S. Embassy to evacuate.

The U.S. Air Force was also still trying to take out more South Vietnamese. Waves of C130 transports took off from the Philippines, and sources there said they would try to land at Tan Son Nhut to pick up Vietnamese.

Minh announced his order for the departure of American military personnel in a brief radio address. He gave no explanation, but it was believed he was trying to comply with the Communists' conditions for the opening of peace negotiations.

The sources in Washington said the remaining Americans in Saigon — there are believed to be about 900 — would be picked up at specified locations in the city by helicopters flown in from U.S. Navy carriers off the South Vietnamese coast.

U.S. officials had hoped to avoid a helicopter evacuation, and the use of U.S. Marines to protect it, but after the heavy Communist rocket and artillery attacks on the Saigon airport they decided they had no choice.

Hours before the predawn rocketing started, Communist leaders turned down an appeal by the new Saigon government for a cease-fire and peace talks.

Two American Marines were reported among those killed in the shelling of the airfield and a U.S. Air Force C130 cargo plane there to fly refugees out was destroyed.

U.S. sources said the two Marines were part of the American Embassy security staff, but had been detached to the defense attaché's office at Tan Son Nhut to help evacuate refugees and were on guard there when a shell hit the compound.

South Vietnamese field reports said Viet Cong units attacked six villages 10 miles north of Saigon and radio contact was lost with three, indicating the defenders' positions had been overrun. Radio contact also was lost with a ranger company northwest of the capital, according to the reports.

Fighting also was reported only five miles southwest of the capital.

By midmorning, rockets still were falling occasionally into the air base but most of the explosions heard in Saigon were from bombs of South Vietnamese warplanes attacking Viet Cong rocket positions and suspected troop concentrations.

Associated Press Special Correspondent Peter Arnett said Communist-led troops armed with hand-fired Strela missiles shot down a South Vietnamese air force helicopter and two warplanes. He reported the craft crumpled in flames and plunged to earth.

When Communist-led troops severed the highway between Saigon and the Bien Hoa air base 15 miles to the north they left Saigon with Tan Son Nhut as the only base for large planes.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues conferred with Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates in unsuccessful efforts to arrange a cease-fire.

After the Communist leaders rejected the Saigon government's appeal for a truce and peace talks high military sources said they apparently had decided to settle for nothing less than a complete military victory.

Gen. Duong Van Minh was installed as president in a move some felt might bring a chance for an end to the fighting and peace talks with the Communist side.

But Viet Cong representatives turned a cold shoulder to Minh's inaugural call for a cease-fire and instead demanded abolishment of the Saigon administration and its army. The Viet Cong statement also repeated demands for an end to U.S. intervention.

The outlook was for a military showdown that many felt could see Saigon fall in a matter of days.

U.S. officials were quoted as saying disgruntled South Vietnamese pilots dropped the bombs on Tan Son Nhut, but a South Vietnamese military source said it was done by the Communist side with four A37 fighter-bombers captured from South Vietnam at Da Nang.

The South Vietnamese source said 11 parked aircraft were destroyed at Tan Son Nhut, including three F5 jet fighters and seven gunships.

As the weekend ended there were 954 Americans remaining in South Vietnam, only 11 of them dependents, State Department officials said.

A Pentagon spokesman said 870 Americans remained in Vietnam at the time of the rocket attack.

The developments came as U.S. authorities struggled to find places to put the refugees, and planes to fly them there.

The Pentagon said up to 60,000 refugees would be housed temporarily at military bases in California, Florida and Arkansas.

Missionary From Nebraska Leaves

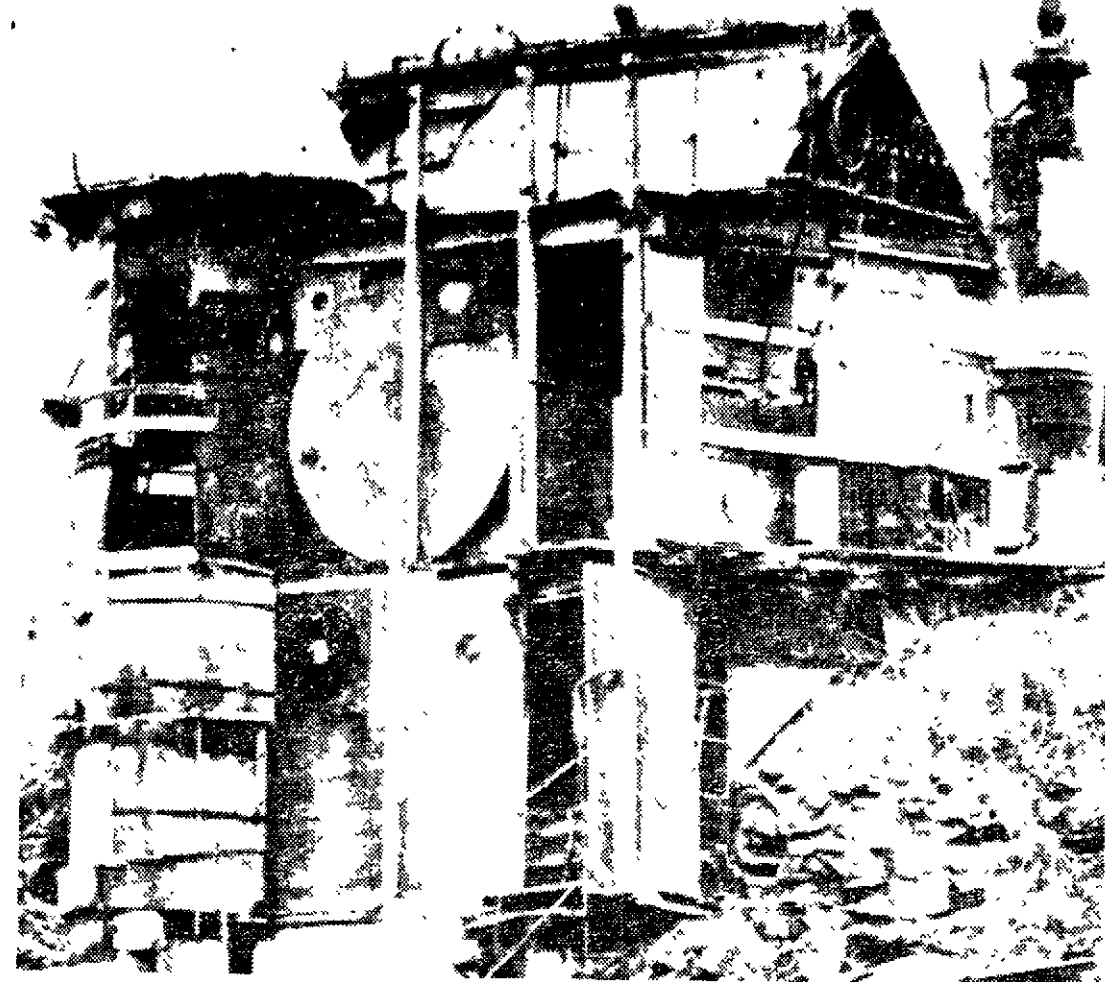

OMAHA (AP) — A Nebraska missionary who has been in Vietnam since 1954 has been evacuated from Saigon.

The Christian Missionary Alliance said the Rev. Royce Rexilius, a native of Waverly, stayed behind three weeks ago when 55 other Alliance missionaries were evacuated to Thailand.

The Rev. Mr. Rexilius had volunteered to remain in South Vietnam.

He and his wife, along with other missionaries evacuated to Bangkok, will now go to Malaysia.

Mrs. Charlotte Allwine, of the Christian Missionary Alliance in Omaha, said the couple will probably return to the Lincoln area this summer.

3 Major NU Projects Given Committee Okay

By DON WALTON

The University of Nebraska won state tax support for three major projects in Appropriations Committee deliberations Monday.

Approved for consideration on the floor:

—an $8.1 million ambulatorium at the Medical Center in Omaha.

—a $200,000 state tax appropriation to operate the new fieldhouse in Lincoln.

—a $125,000 injection of state tax support for the State University of Nebraska (SUN) project.

Reconsideration
In the latter two cases, committee action represented a reconsideration of earlier decisions to finance the two programs only with self-generated cash or revolving funds.

The fieldhouse funding, which would be added to the previous authorization to use $250,000 in athletic department cash and revolving funds, if the university can find them, was approved on an 8-1 vote.

Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings dissented, and suggested he may "fight part of this on the floor independently." SUN funding was accepted on a 5-2 count.

Funding for the ambulatorium, a two-year project which will combine $5.5 million in federal grants with about $2.5 million in state funds, was endorsed on a 7-0 vote.

Exon Plan OK'd
In effect, the committee accepted the recommendation of Gov. J. James Exon to use $1.2

"Anything that is going on free" contributes to athletic department costs, he noted. The department is projecting a future deficit and thus was unable to finance fieldhouse operations from its own budget.

Marvel said he also wants the Simpson subcommittee to meet with NU administrators to determine future management of the fieldhouse, and seek "projects which would help pay for the operation in lieu of regular tax money."

The 8-1 vote reversed an earlier 7-0 committee decision to use athletic department funds to operate the facility.

Stand Reversed
The 5-2 vote to provide state tax support for SUN, the multimedia educational program which takes college courses to Nebraskans in their homes, reversed an earlier 5-3 vote denying any state tax funding.

Voting with the majority this time were Sens. Marsh, E. Thorne Johnson of Fremont, Douglas Bereuter of Ute, and John Savage and Glenn Goodrich, both of Omaha.

Nay votes were cast by Marvel and Clark.

Sens. Leslie Stull of Alliance and Simpson declined to vote. The $125,000 appropriation compares with a request for $157,790. The funds will be used for delivery of courses to enrollees.

In other action, the committee approved a $75,000 appropriation for preservation of the beef barn at the State Fairgrounds in Lincoln, and $55,000 to improve the water supply system at Fort Robinson.

State Authorities Conclude Truckers Paying Fair Share

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Truckers appear to be paying their share of taxes to Nebraska.

Representatives of the Departments of Motor Vehicles and Revenue have reached that conclusion after examining questions raised by an audit of the Motor Vehicles Department.

Basically, they agreed, the points raised by state auditors were valid in that they show the need for auditors in the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

Apples And Oranges

But any conclusions regarding discrepancies in mileages truckers report to those two agencies is akin to the old fruit market dilemma of comparing apples and oranges, they said.

After consulting with the agencies, Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca, chairman of the Legislature's Revenue Committee, said his committee will not be probing the matter.

"Both departments got together and resolved that there was no significant difference in terms of taxes paid," Carsten said.

In their examination, state auditors noted that mileage figures reported to Revenue for fuel tax purposes and to Motor Vehicles for fee and property tax purposes varied in most instances.

$41,000 Difference
When mileage figures given Revenue were used to compute registration fees and property taxes, it was revealed that sample firms would have paid another $47,000 to the state.

Motor Vehicles officials and a Nebraska Motor Carrier Association official countered that the two mileage figures are not comparable and that truckers generally are paying the taxes they rightfully owe.

According to a report released Monday, Vern Janssen, head of Motor Vehicles' proration division for trucks, gave the following reasons why the two mileage figures cannot be compared:

—Operators of leased vehicles may report under the lessor's or the lessee's name to Revenue but only under the lessee's name to Motor Vehicles.

—Smaller trucks may be included in the Revenue mileages but do not report to Motor Vehicles.

Other Counties

—Some carriers license their vehicles in the county where they are based. These vehicles' mileage may be included in the fuel tax figures for the Revenue Department but are not part of Motor Vehicles' mileage figures.

—A carrier may have several fleets of trucks, all of which report mileage to Revenue, but only fleets based in Nebraska or in states having agreements with Nebraska must register with Motor Vehicles.

—Carriers may purchase trip permits in lieu of filing registration and property tax statements with Motor Vehicles.

In conclusion, Janssen said any comparison of figures between the two departments is "unworkable."

Carsten and Janssen agreed that if LB530, a bill which would simplify the proration function, had been law at the time of the audit, the mileage differences would have been minor.

—Cite and release a person arrested for drunk driving on the first or second offense, instead of automatically jailing the person, if the person has local identification and transportation home.

—Discontinue the department's policy of towing all drunk drivers' cars.

—Discontinue the public posting of the activities list showing the number of arrests made by each officer.

Most of the recommendations were put into effect last week.

The Bruckner report was undertaken at the council's instigation.

Total $17,394

Bruckner himself will be paid $12,180 by the council for doing the investigation. The total cost, including the attorney's fee, secretarial, court reporters' and a law clerk's time, and duplicating costs, is $17,394.

The only people appearing at the first public hearing on the Bruckner report were Elaine Carpenter from the League of Women Voters, supporting the recommendations, and Lloyd Hinrichs, who objected to the cost of the report.

The council didn't accept Bruckner's one recommendation on tavern checks partially

Siege Of Consulate Blamed On One Man

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A siege of the Israeli Consulate in downtown Johannesburg ended early Tuesday after 16 hours, and Police Minister Jimmy Kruger announced that an assistant security officer at the consulate with "some political axe to grind" was responsible.

A police spokesman told the South African Broadcasting Corp. that the security man, a South African Jew named David Protter, was the only gunman in the fifth-floor consulate during the siege.

Earlier reports said terrorists had seized the office and were holding a number of persons hostage.

At least two persons were killed and more than 33 wounded during a series of gun battles. Most of them were bystanders near the six-story building located in the center of the city's movie and theater district.

The gunman held 21 persons hostage in the embassy, including three children but released five wounded persons and the children during the siege.

One report said at least one other hostage was so badly wounded he could not be moved from the consulate immediately after the surrender.

Until about half an hour before the surrender, it was thought that six gunmen were involved in the siege. Initially it was reported that there were three Lebanese and three Japanese, but shortly after midnight Kruger denied this in a telephone interview.

Kruger told newsmen that Protter "will now be taken to Pretoria together with the Israeli Ambassador, Mr. I.D. Umana, to whom he will give his complete story."

Protter, in his twenties, served in the Israeli army in the 1973 Arab-Israeli war and worked in Israel for several years, police said. He grew up in Johannesburg and is one of four children.

What Police Wear Not Council Worry

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City lawmakers said Monday night they don't care whether uniformed police officers or plainclothes ones conduct local tavern checks. What they do want is for the police to apply its policy equally to all liquor outlets.

Currently, uniformed officers check local bars nightly to insure that the liquor laws are being followed. Non-uniformed officers, however, check private clubs.

The James Bruckner report suggested that plainclothes officers conduct tavern checks.

Only One Rejected

That recommendation was the only one which the lawmakers did not adopt Monday when they formally accepted the report and asked Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf to implement the following recommendations:

—Discontinue pretext stops and bad arrests by officers by the use of appropriate disciplinary action.

—Permit a person arrested for drunk driving to have up to 30 minutes to call and consult with an attorney before taking the chemical test for intoxication.

—Provide people jailed for drunk driving or public intoxication with a blanket and mattress.

—Cite and release a person arrested for drunk driving on the first or second offense, instead of automatically jailing the person, if the person has local identification and transportation home.

—Discontinue the department's policy of towing all drunk drivers' cars.

Ford Strongly Opposes Pro-Consumer Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford declared strong opposition Monday to a proposed consumer protection agency and called for overhaul of many federal business regulations.

The President told the 63rd meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that "government regulations have added billions of unnecessary dollars to business and consumer costs every year."

To reverse the trend, he said, "my administration is working hard to identify and eliminate those regulations which now cost the American people more than they provide in benefits."

The President said he soon will convene what he termed an unprecedented meeting of the commissioners of the 10 major independent regulatory agencies. Joining them, he said, will be key members of Congress and the administration.

"Together, we will discuss the imperative need to foster greater competition in the public interest and the equally imperative need to consider the inflationary effects of all proposed new regulations," he stated.

The audience interrupted his 30-minute speech 13 times, with the greatest applause coming when the President declared that he has asked Congress to postpone action on legislation which would create a new federal agency for consumer advocacy.

"I do not believe that we need yet another federal bureaucracy in Washington with its attendant costs of $60 million over three years and additional federal employees," the President said.

Ford also said the government should not be rushed into writing new federal regulations on such social issues as job safety, the environment and consumer protection.

"The question is not whether we want to do something about noise and safety — but whether making changes in our regulations would make sense in terms of costs and added benefits gained," Ford said.

"All too often, the federal government promulgates new rules and regulations which raise costs — and consumer prices at the same time — to achieve small or limited social benefits," Ford said.

The chairman of the chamber, Charles H. Smith Jr., told the delegates he was concerned over what he said is "an increasing willingness to trade a part of our individual freedom for the promise of greater security."

He said he feels the nation now has "reached a point where the balance between the private sector and the public sector is tilting precariously in the direction of less and less freedom for the American public."

Advisers Suspect Political Sabotage

Washington (UPI)—The White House said Monday some advisers to President Ford believe his 1976 election plans are being sabotaged.

Press secretary Ron Nessen told reporters the advisers have "no suspicion" that supporters of Vice President Nelson E. Rockefeller are behind the sabotage. But he said "I don't think I'll go any further" when asked if the suspicions extended to backers of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The matter arose when reporters asked Nessen about a report in Newsweek magazine that Ford told a meeting of political intimates he will not run in 1976 because of his wife's health and because he felt he could not spare the time and money needed for a presidential campaign.

"The President wants it known that this story is untrue. The President held no such meeting. He definitely plans to run for election in 1976. Any reports to the contrary are wrong," Nessen said.

The press secretary said suspicion did not fall on anyone on Ford's staff. He said the advisers do not know the names of the individuals doing the alleged sabotage, "but they have some suspicions."

New Rebate Offered By Chrysler Dealers

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. will give $200 rebates to buyers of new Dodge and Plymouth compact cars beginning on Thursday.

The sales campaign, which is not immediately being matched by other car companies, is scheduled to run through May.

Chrysler also will offer $200 rebates on three small truck models: The Dodge Tradesman van, Dodge Sportsman Wagon and the Plymouth Voyager, dealers said.

A Chrysler spokesman said other models are included in the rebate offer, but refused to reveal them until Wednesday when briefings for Chrysler dealers will have been completed.

Sales vice president R.D. McLaughlin said the firm hopes another round of rebates will boost sales, and noted, "April sales are such that we need a stimulant."

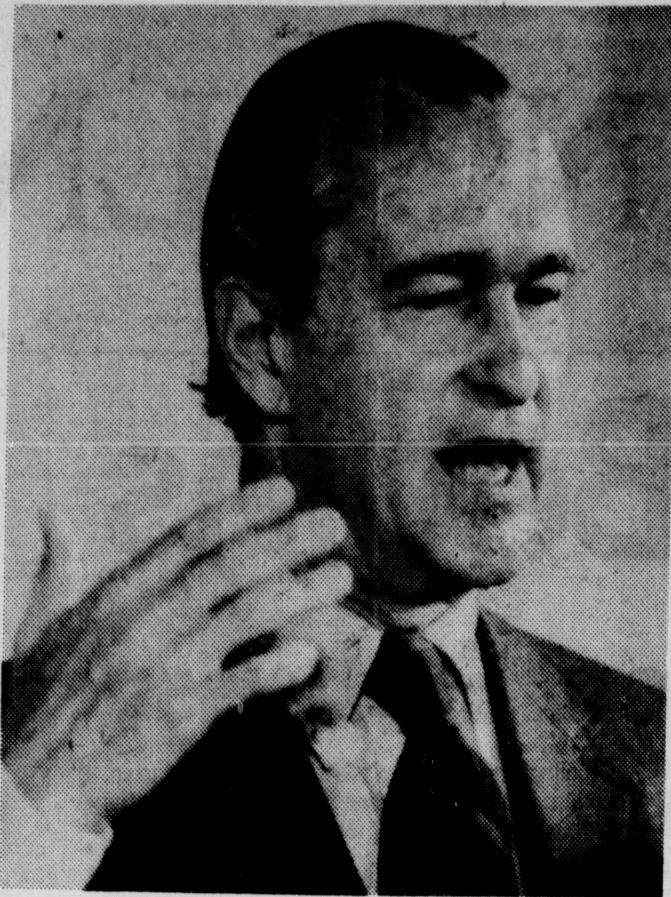

Dealers said Chrysler will pay the rebate to buyers of 1975 Dodge Darts, Plymouth Valiants or Plymouth Dusters. According to a radio ad, the models must already be in dealer stock.

Sirica Reduces McCord's Time

Washington (AP)—Federal District Judge John J. Sirica reduced Monday the sentence of James W. McCord Jr. to four months in prison. The judge gave no reason.

It means that McCord, chief wiretapper on the Watergate burglary team, may be free next month.

When he heard the news, McCord was working on the farm at the Allenwood, Pa., prison camp. He said, "I am very happy, I am very thankful, very grateful."

House OK's 5¢ Hot-Lunch Subsidy

Washington (UPI)—The House voted Monday to subsidize the hot lunch of every U.S. school pupil by a nickel, extend the free lunch program to children of the unemployed and raise the eligible income for reduced-priced lunches.

The House approved and set to the Senate on a 335-59 vote the measure which also extends several school meal programs beyond this year and expands the hot lunch coverage to include an estimated 12 million elementary and secondary students.

The nickel subsidy was attached to the measure on a 213-176 vote when supporters argued that students and entire school systems were dropping out of the 30-year-old federally subsidized hot lunch program because of the increased cost of the lunch to the pupils.

Opponents argued that the amendment was adding $125 million to a program which already was costing $3 billion and was benefiting no one but the children of middle and upper income people. The nickel subsidy, they said, did nothing for a family of four with an annual income of $10,200 or less.

The cost of preparing a hot lunch which meets the federal nutritional requirements is 84 cents. Because of state and federal subsidies, the national average cost of these lunches to the pupil is 45 cents.

Because of the steadily rising prices a student must pay for these meals, many are dropping out and eating less nutritional meals elsewhere, according to proponents of the plan to put a 25-cent ceiling on the price of all school lunches.

The nickel subsidy was a compromise between those who wanted the ceiling and those who wanted no change in the current program. The impasse

Suit Against Networks Can Proceed

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday cleared the way for the Justice Department to proceed against the three major broadcast networks on grounds they are illegally monopolizing prime-time entertainment programming.

CBS, NBC and ABC have contended that the civil suit, filed in Los Angeles Federal District Court in 1972 by the Nixon administration, was intended merely to harass them. In the confusion surrounding Richard M. Nixon's resignation from the presidency, they were unable to obtain White House documents they say could prove their claim.

Meantime District Judge Robert J. Kelleher dismissed the suit but allowed it to be refiled by the Ford administration. The government invoked the Sherman antitrust act.

The lower court found the facilities so understaffed, outdated and unsanitary as to be "cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the U.S. Constitution.

The networks came to the Supreme Court in an effort to get the lawsuit blocked, but the justices in a brief order dismissed the appeal "for want of jurisdiction." Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented.

Acting on a handful of routine matters before starting its last two-week recess of the current term, the court rejected Alabama's appeal from a lower court requirement that it make sweeping changes in prison medical treatment facilities.

Helms Snarls At Schorr

Washington (UPI) — Former CIA Director Richard Helms Monday bitterly denounced a newsman for reporting charges that the CIA carried out the assassination of foreign leaders.

Helms made the comments to reporters after an appearance of nearly three hours before the Rockefeller Commission — the longest appearance by any of the 44 witnesses who have testified during its 16-week investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The target of Helms' venom was CBA reporter Daniel Schorr, who first reported that President Ford was concerned that the CIA investigation would reveal that the spy agency had a role in the assassination of at least three foreign leaders.

"Killer Schorr! Killer Schorr!" Helms said loudly as he walked down the hallway with reporters following him appearance before the presidential commission headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Later during a news conference when Schorr asked a question on a subject unrelated to the assassinations, Helms would only answer: "I don't like some of the lies you've been putting on the air."

"I just want to say one thing. I don't know of any foreign leader that was ever assassinated by the CIA. That's my honest belief."

Helms bristled when newsmen asked him if there had ever been discussions in the CIA on plotting the assassinations of foreign leaders.

"That's like asking me if I've stopped beating my wife," Helms said. "There were always discussions of everything. Two men may have sat in the State Department or the Defense Department and discussed things that my not be acceptable to the American people. That happens all the time."

Helms refused to comment on reports that former President Lyndon B. Johnson told several colleagues that he believed the assassination of President John F. Kennedy was in retaliation for a CIA plot aimed at Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

"I don't know why President Johnson said these things," Helms said.

Helms, who is now ambassador to Iran, was director of the CIA from 1966 to early 1973. Reports have charged that during the anti-war movement in the late 1960s, the CIA was engaged in a massive domestic spying program which is illegal under its charter.

Helms said his testimony "covered all kinds of subjects — Cuba, Vietnam — anything you can imagine."

He said he had spent two days preparing with the staff of the Rockefeller Commission and then appeared before the full panel "for a reaffirmation of what I covered with the staff."

He refused comment about the specific charges of domestic spying, saying: "Let's wait until the commissioner has given its report. They've conducted an exhaustive investigation."

Avon Says: Watchword Of Freedom Must Still Be 'No Appeasement'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Anthony Eden, now Earl of Avon, was British foreign secretary before and during World War II and prime minister 1955-57. He is the last of the Western statesmen who personally knew all the great wartime leaders. In the following exclusive interview, he looks back on the end of World War II in Europe 30 years ago May 8 and comments on subsequent events.

By COLIN FROST

ALVEDISTON, England (AP) — Thirty years after the end of World War II in Europe, the Earl of Avon sees freedom again endangered and says the watchword must still be: "no appeasement."

Appeasement of Hitler's Germany was the issue on which, as Anthony Eden, he resigned as Britain's foreign secretary in 1938. He returned as foreign secretary with Winston Churchill and is the only survivor of the Western leaders whose historic conferences with Russia's Stalin led to victory in Europe.

Now, speaking amid a succession of Communist victories in Southeast Asia, he warned against appeasement of Stalin's successors.

"Above all," he said, "no appeasement, which means no yielding to obtain a little present ease at the cost of the future."

Lord Avon was interviewed at the 17th century manor house where in retirement he farms and until recently bred pedigree cattle.

He is 77 and has long had to be careful of his health and energy, but the voice and grasp were as vigorous as ever.

He conducted the two-hour interview in the style that Churchill conducted much of his wartime work, propped in bed and surrounded by newspapers, British and American.

The room looks out on the rolling greenery of the Wiltshire countryside. Lady Avon, who is Churchill's niece, was on hand throughout, dealing with a stream of telephone calls.

Lord Avon remarked on an Associated Press picture of casualties among South Vietnamese troops defending the road to Saigon.

"Tragedy," he said. "They look little more than children." That led into his theme of the central importance of the North Atlantic Treaty in the defense of freedom.

He stressed his view that President Harry S. Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Washington's leaders in the immediate postwar years, were the strongest team in foreign affairs that the United States has known since the war.

"They were a thousand times right," Lord Avon said, "to build NATO with Britain and France, just as we were right in 1954 to expand it by bringing in Germany and Italy. The Brussels Treaty, originally aimed against Germany and Italy, was transformed into a mutual assistance pact."

"These were landmarks in statesmanship. Today, NATO is more than ever important. It is indispensable for security or for any future negotiations across the Iron Curtain."

No appeasement, he explained, does not mean an end to East-West negotiation, or even an end to concessions — so long as any concession by the West is matched with a full and fair counterpart.

He gave an example: "Suppose Russia were to offer to withdraw three divisions back into her territories. This would be no sufficient justification for a similar withdrawal of three United States divisions across the Atlantic to America.

"Geographically the two things are not comparable. Nor are they comparable when Soviet armed forces are so greatly superior in numerical strength and grow daily in the power of their equipment."

The United States and Western Europe, he said, indeed have a special relationship but must be clear just what it means.

"Its basis is neither sentiment nor tradition, or even much common ancestry. It is stern political reality."

"If Western Europe were ever lost to the free world, the balance of resources and manufacturing capacity and therefore political power would be dangerously tilted against the American continent and the remaining free countries of the Pacific."

"That must not be allowed to happen. NATO therefore has the strongest of all cement — mutual survival."

In this context Lord Avon urged Greece and Turkey, both NATO members, to settle their differences over Cyprus, either with or without the help of friendly powers.

"Fundamentally," Lord Avon said, "the two countries' interests are the same and they both recognized this when they applied for membership of NATO."

"It should not be impossible for Ankara and Athens to negotiate their Cyprus differences into an acceptable settlement. The essential for both the Greek and Turkish peoples is that they should continue their work together in NATO, as they so wisely perceived many years ago."

He continued: "We have to work for international unity and pay for it if we mean to preserve the freedoms which really count — freedom of speech, of thought, of press, of movement."

"We have to guard those freedoms by fair contributions to their defense. The free nations must get together and stay together. They must plan together and act together."

"It will not be easy, but there is no other way if government by free peoples is to survive anywhere on this threatened planet."

Wallace Blames 'Doves'

Washington (UPI)—Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama said Monday that "so-called doves" in this country are responsible for the Communist takeover in Southeast Asia.

The governor, gearing up another campaign for the presidency, made the comment while talking to reporters after a House subcommittee hearing.

"I feel very sadly about the situation," Wallace said. "This country should never have gotten bogged down in Southeast Asia... It should never have gotten bogged down in a land war."

The governor repeated several times that he felt the war should have been settled long ago using U.S. conventional weapons.

"You shouldn't get into a war unless you are going to win it," he added. "The so-called doves in this country are responsible for the Communist takeover."

Wallace said that had the "hawks" had their way, the United States would have won the war with much less killing.

"It was the fault of the people in government, influenced by the news media, and the stomping in the streets," he told reporters.

The governor added that he was in good physical health and that his only handicap was that he cannot walk.

"I'm crippled on one end, but some of the people running this country are crippled on the other end," Wallace said.

Evacuation Ordered After President, Council Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The evacuation of Americans from beleaguered Saigon was ordered to get under way early Tuesday, several hours after President Ford met in emergency session with the National Security Council, government sources said.

The sources said the evacuation would take place within hours and would be carried out with helicopters flown in from U.S. Navy ships stationed off the South Vietnamese coast.

Deputy Press Secretary John Hushen said fewer than a dozen officials attended the National Security Council meeting. He said they included Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, Director William E. Colby of the Central Intelligence Agency and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Officials said there were 954 Americans remaining in South Vietnam before a bombing attack at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport, which brought a brief suspension of flights carrying Vietnamese and Americans out of the country.

There were conflicting reports, meanwhile, of how many Vietnamese refugees were destined for the United States.

House Speaker Carl Albert said he and other congressional leaders had been informed by administration officials that 38,000 South Vietnamese refugees will be brought to three military installations in the United States. But a Pentagon spokesman, Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle, said as many as 60,000 refugees would be housed temporarily at the bases.

Sidle said about 40,000 South Vietnamese refugees have been flown to Guam and other places.

The House is expected to give final congressional approval Tuesday to legislation authorizing the use of U.S. troops, if necessary, to evacuate Americans and Vietnamese from South Vietnam and $327 million in evacuation funds and humanitarian aid for South Vietnam.

But Asst. Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said he had grave doubts about the admission of any sizeable number of refugees to the United States with eight million Americans unable to find employment.

A group of Vietnamese exiles living in the United States said they want to return to their homeland and condemned the massive evacuation of South Vietnamese to the United States.

The Pentagon said the refugees being brought to the United States will be housed initially at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; Ft. Chaffee, Ark.; and

Camp Pendleton, Calif. Movement of refugees to these bases is expected to begin within the next two days in order to reduce larger buildups of refugees at U.S. bases in the Pacific," the Pentagon said.

Deputy Press Secretary John Hushen said fewer than a dozen officials attended the National Security Council meeting. He said they included Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, Director William E. Colby of the Central Intelligence Agency and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Officials said there were 954 Americans remaining in South Vietnam before a bombing attack at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport, which brought a brief suspension of flights carrying Vietnamese and Americans out of the country.

There were conflicting reports, meanwhile, of how many Vietnamese refugees were destined for the United States.

House Speaker Carl Albert said he and other congressional leaders had been informed by administration officials that 38,000 South Vietnamese refugees will be brought to three military Side said about 40,000 South Vietnamese refugees have been flown to Guam and other places.

The House is expected to give final congressional approval Tuesday to legislation authorizing the use of U.S. troops, if necessary, to evacuate Americans and Vietnamese from South Vietnam and $327 million in evacuation funds and humanitarian aid for South Vietnam.

But Asst. Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said he had grave doubts about the admission of any sizeable number of refugees to the United States with eight million Americans unable to find employment.

A group of Vietnamese exiles living in the United States said they want to return to their homeland and condemned the massive evacuation of South Vietnamese to the United States.

The Pentagon said the refugees being brought to the United States will be housed initially at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.; Ft. Chaffee, Ark.; and Camp Pendleton, Calif.

"Movement of refugees to these bases is expected to begin within the next two days in order to reduce larger buildups of refugees at U.S. bases in the Pacific," the Pentagon said.

Charter Change Faces Voters

In the long run, we don't suppose it makes too much difference whether the City Council and the County Board or the City-County Planning Commission is legally responsible for adopting the city-county Comprehensive Plan. We think it all boils down to the case-by-case implementation or rejection of the plan by the appropriate legislative bodies and that official adoption of the plan is merely window dressing, intended to make it appear as if the board or the council is more tightly bound to the plan.

But Lincoln voters will be confronted with the issue, of a proposed City Charter amendment which will appear on the city general election ballot next Tuesday.

The amendment deals with the City Council only, and would make that body under the charter legally responsible for adopting the Comprehensive Plan and approving subsequent amendments thereto. The City-County Planning Commission would retain its advisory function but would lose its adopting authority. The charter amendment would put the fundamental city law in conformance with state law.

The legislature only recently passed

LB111 which provides that the County Board and the City Council each will separately approve the Comprehensive Plan — the guideline for city-county development and land use. At first it appeared as if the Unicameral had pulled off a fait accompli.

If the amendment passes, there would be no conflict of laws. No problem.

If the voters do not approve it, however, there could be a legal problem which could invite a court test to see which would apply — the new state law or the old City Charter provision. The courts would rule on the question of whether it is a matter of statewide concern or local concern, legal authorities say, and if the former, the new state law would apply — making the council the adoptive body — and if the latter, the charter would apply and thus the planning commission would retain its adopting authority.

We're of the opinion, not tightly held, that a legal dispute isn't worth it and that the consequences either way the vote goes won't amount to a hill of beans.

A vote in favor of the charter amendment next Tuesday would be appropriate. At least it would be a vote in favor of a less complicated outcome.

WILLIAM SAFFIRE

WASHINGTON — Philip Burton, Democratic congressman from California, is the most important man in Congress today not only because he runs the Democratic caucus, but because he holds the biggest I.O.U. in town.

The political demand note that Burton can brandish is from Robert Strauss, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Thanks to some fast footwork labeled "campaign spending reform," Strauss owes Burton his job, his reputation, perhaps even his freedom.

Here is how it came to pass. Last summer, Chairman Wayne Hays of the House Administration Committee introduced an odd amendment to the elections bill under consideration. The new provision reduced the statute of limitations on violations of the Campaign Spending Act from five years to three. Chairman Hays told other members of the committee that the idea "came from outside," but that he supported it.

A Republican — Bill Frenzel of Golden Valley, Minn. — thought this looked suspicious. The new wrinkle would make it difficult to prosecute violations of the law that took place in 1970 and 1971 — why were the Democrats so anxious to protect those years?

Shortly after that meeting Phil Burton came to call on his colleague who had objected to the amendment. Frenzel tells me he gained the clear impression that it was Burton who was the man who induced Hays to put in the two-year escape hatch.

"At that time," Bill Frenzel recalls now, "I didn't think of Bob Strauss. Nobody even men-shortened statute of limitations became law — the company pleaded guilty to such illegal campaign contributions.

Strauss has insisted that he thought Ashland's illegal cash contribution was a "personal" prosecutor washes his hands of the whole affair.

"There is no question," some faceless source assures Washington reporters, that an aggressive prosecution of the gone, let's forget about it." A genuinely humane attitude, but whom was Burton thinking about?

Did anyone at the Democratic National Committee discuss this escape hatch with Burton? Both Strauss and Burton vigorously deny contact on this; Wilbur Mills is silent; were there any middlemen who conspired to obstruct justice by changing the law?

I do not raise these questions because I think Robert Strauss belongs in jail. He does not. He is a man of good humor and good sense, a courageous politician whose appearance as a character witness for John Connally helped convince 12 Democrats on the jury of his old friend's rectitude. His actions in 1970 should not be judged by post-Watergate political morality. Ex post facto law is wrong, and the unprecedented application of long-neglected laws is unfair.

But let us not raise a double standard in which the unwise or dishonest can repair; 1972 fundraiser Stans should not be imprisoned if 1970 fundraiser Strauss is sprung by a quick fix in the law.

Philip Burton — King Caucus himself — holds a big I.O.U. from his party's chairman. One day he will cash that in, while the rest of us behold in wonderment all that can be accomplished in the name of "campaign spending reform."

tioned his name. I remember thinking it was a minor point. I had no idea it would turn out to be so important."

Over Frenzel's mild objections, Hays pushed Burton's two-year escape hatch through committee on a voice vote. It became part of the "campaign reform."

A few months later it became known that the Ashland Oil Company had made two cash payments totalling $55,000 to Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss in 1970. On Dec. 30, 1974 — two days before the new campaign "reform" with its gift from the firm's president, and thus legitimate. That was substantially what Nixon Finance Chairman Maurice Stans said in a case not covered by the Burton escape hatch; he was forced to plead guilty to a misdemeanor and now awaits sentencing.

Democrat Strauss, however, does not face sentencing or anything else; a leak the other day from the special prosecutor's office informs us that the file on Strauss has been sent back to the Department of Justice and that the special Democratic national chairman would have taken place — except for one slight problem. The statute of limitations has switched, you see, from five years back to three, which means that violations in 1970 and 1971 have slipped through the escape hatch.

Some questions arise. Why was Phil Burton so anxious to give automatic amnesty to violators in those years? Frenzel says Burton told him at the time: "Why let everybody worry? When the old law is

A Welcome Change Of Heart

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee commendably reversed two positions taken earlier despite the recalcitrance of committee chief Richard Marvel.

Marvel had indicated that if he had his way, the University of Nebraska wouldn't get any state tax money to operate and maintain the new fieldhouse now nearing completion at the fairgrounds in Lincoln. Marvel's committee last week authorized the expenditure of a quarter of a million dollars for fieldhouse maintenance from the time it opens until the end of fiscal 1975-76. But the money wouldn't have come from tax funds. The bulk of it would have been bled from the UN-L athletic department — which is approaching deficit budgeting. Placing additional burdens on the athletic department would inevitably hurt the sports program at UN-L. It is obvious that the football program cannot pay for everything.

But the Appropriations Committee turned around Monday — over Marvel's objections alone — and voted a $200,000 tax appropriation for fieldhouse maintenance for the period in question.

Marvel obtained only the support of Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney in losing a 2-5 vote restoring funds for the State University of Nebraska (SUN) program, a multimedia educational concept which allows people to gain college credits while at home. The committee agreed with the Legislature's fiscal staff last week that the SUN request for state tax support was not a high enough priority item. The program had not proved its "viability," the staff said.

Monday the committee voted to add $125,000 to the budget for SUN. It was not all the project had asked for, but it should help it through a critical period of growth and development and a time in which it is proving itself. Its viability now will most certainly receive a more adequate test.

We're happy to see the change of heart on the appropriations committee. These were two decisions which are in the best interests of the programs involved. Hopefully the full Legislature will go along with the appropriations majority.

WASHINGTON — With the collapse of his policies in Southeast Asia, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger may follow his friends Lon Nol and Nguyen Van Thieu into premature retirement.

White House sources tell us that President Ford hasn't lost confidence in Kissinger. But almost everyone else in the top policy-making councils has.

The ink was hardly dry on the Jan. 27, 1973, Paris peace accords before the Joint Chiefs warned, in effect, that Kissinger had delivered Vietnam to the communists.

Under the terms Kissinger accepted in Paris, the North Vietnamese army was granted a foothold in the South.

The Joint Chiefs predicted precisely what is now happening in Vietnam. Their secret estimate, as we reported on Feb. 1, 1973, was that President Thieu would not survive and that the communists would win the final struggle for Vietnam.

While the Joint Chiefs looked upon this as a disaster, some policy-makers have contended that a communist triumph would actually benefit the United States.

Not only would this stop an enormous financial drain, they argued, but also the rival communist powers would wind up squabbling among themselves over Indochina. The United States could enjoy the luxury of standing back and watching the developments.

The best available intelligence indicates that the Khmer Rouge, who are now taking over Cambodia, distrust the North Vietnamese and want to keep their country independent of Hanoi.

The Chinese are also reported to be wary of North Vietnam, which could develop into a rival communist power on their southern flank.

The Russians, on the other hand, are trying to bolster Hanoi as a counterweight to Communist China.

The United States would have been better off all along, in the opinion of many experts, abandoning Indochina to the rivalries of the divided communists.

But meanwhile, the opinion is almost unanimous in the backrooms that Kissinger has mishandled the Vietnam issue and that his policies have badly damaged the United States.

Real Indian Country

Santa Fe, N.M. The so-called Wounded Knee trials took place in Lincoln recently. The "American Indian Movement" was prominent, along with some unusual characters among their supporting cast. By mystic incantation and the like, it was sought to convey the impression that the A.I.M. occupies a higher moral level, with closed-circuit access to the Great Spirit. Some of our citizens seemed to fall for this fantasy.

Interesting it is to recall the foregoing while sojourning here in New Mexico, for this is really Indian country. The Indian population is large — as a percentage of the total, perhaps the largest of any state. The numerous tribes and their pueblos are no mere pensioners. They are vigorous and outspoken in behalf of Indian interests.

And what do the Indians of New Mexico think of the A.I.M.?

From an article in the Albuquerque Journal, Tuesday, April 17.

"Any Bureau of Indian Affairs officials who negotiate with A.I.M. will be asked to leave. We do not want A.I.M. to speak in our behalf and we do not want them to act in our behalf. THEY SHOULD STAY THE HELL OUT OF HERE."

Can A Small Nation Survive?

Crete, Neb. On October 6, 1938, a Pulitzer prize-winning cartoon by Charles Werner appeared in The Oklahoman showing a tombstone with this inscription: "Czechoslovakia 1919-1938," with a scroll on the grave reading, "Nobel Peace Prize." The message was clear and simple — a tragic end to a small nation that wished to be free and independent.

During World War I, representatives of several small countries of Eastern Europe came to Washington, D.C., and formed a government in exile which was to be Czechoslovakia upon completion of the peace treaties. Perhaps there was no commitment, but there was an understanding in that the new republic depended upon the Big Three for its help and protection against aggressors. The Big Three were the United States, England and France.

We lived with the illusion that World War I was the end of all wars. In Germany, Hitler had built a big war machine and with his allies was ready to strike. On September 1 and 15, 1938, Chamberlain, then prime minister of England, did some "horse-

New Mexico's Indians And The A.I.M.

trading" with Hitler and sacrificed Czechoslovakia for "Peace in our time."

In a treaty after World War II, why did the Big Three not provide for a free and independent Czechoslovakia? Here a nation whose thinking and understanding were akin to that of ours became communistic as a result of circumstances beyond her control. Because of her geographical position and realizing she could not depend upon the Big Three for defense against aggressors, Czechoslovakia joined with Russia and became a satellite in Russia's first line of defense against the West. If war against Russia were to break out in Europe, she would supply the cannon fodder for that area.

Is it better for a small country to join forces with a larger country for mutual aid and protection and sacrifice its independence? Eventually it may become a part of the larger country. If we believe in integration, the identity of the races and nationalities will be lost through amalgamation and in the span of years is of no consequence.

At present there is a tendency for all things to become larger. The small farm, the small business, the small college, the small school district and the small legislative unit have been labeled as economically unsound. The small family may be an exception and how about the small nation — can it survive?

Perhaps now is the time for some cartoonist to come up with a suitable epitaph — to South Vietnam.

Acts Of Vandalism

Lincoln, Neb. Citizens for Environmental Improvement, Inc. operates three recycling sites in Lincoln in an effort to provide an opportunity for citizens to practice the conservation of our natural resources. C.E.I. is a non-profit organization providing a service to the community. In addition to the sites located at 10th and O and 2535 N. 33rd, there is a site at 70th and A at the East High parking lot. All of these are open and staffed on Saturdays 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. by volunteers.

In recent months there have been instances of vandalism at the site at the East High parking lot. A set of wooden steps was placed there for one weekend and nearly destroyed by vandals. A truck provided by Dennis Paper Co. has been damaged more than once by vandals.

We cannot continue to suffer the loss of property. The Lincoln Police Department has been alerted to the situation and will be patrolling the area to discourage and prevent these acts of destruction.

Hopefully, C.E.I. will continue to operate this site as it has for the past year.

Explanations

Lincoln, Neb. In several recent news articles, references were made to the effect that the National Guard helicopter mechanics who resigned and were fired were employed as full-time National Guardsmen. Not true!

We were appointed as National Guard technicians whose positions are filled under the Civil Service System. Once appointed, the technician is required to be a federally recognized member of the National Guard and assigned to an Army National Guard position in the state on a weekend drill basis. These explanations are drawn from the National Guard technician handbook received when I was appointed.

Having been a veteran helicopter crew chief in Vietnam with the U.S.M.C. and a four-year Nebraska Army National Guardsman on weekends, I plan to stay active in the "Guard." I have not "quit the Nebraska Guard," as one article indicated. As a matter of record, I elected a voluntary six-year obligation to the Guard in June, 1974.

I did resign my National Guard technician position due to spur-of-the-moment policy changes, undue harassment and zealous enforcement of the Army Appearance Regulation (AR 600-20), resulting in an intimidating working environment.

In the best interests of all parties, I hope a viable solution will be initiated.

Letting His Hair Down

Lincoln, Neb. As a National Guard technician, I would like to ask a question of the general public.

First of all, I would like to ask the 20-some sets of parents who had their newborns transported aboard Army National Guard helicopters in our Neo-Natal program in the past two years if the aircraft or crew members' performance was hindered as a result of long-haired crews or mechanics. Two technicians who flew on these missions have resigned as a result of the "hair" hassle.

Also, we may ask the family from Humboldt who had a very unfortunate accident during the heavy snow that paralyzed the southeastern part of the state early this winter if the life-saving flight was slowed by long-haired crew members of technicians.

I would like to ask why I am required to wear a wig to my Civil Service job but when weekend drills come around and I am military, I can take my wig off and let my hair down.

Lincoln, Neb. It is my opinion that an Omaha-based department store with a branch located in Lincoln could learn something in community relations.

They will take our money if we buy anything from them, however!

Conflict-of-Interest Problems

Lincoln, Neb. It is amusing to read Richard Baker's opinion that the newly designated director of the Railroad Transportation Safety District does not have a "conflict of interest."

Perhaps Mr. Baker feels his own experience with the pharmacy at Lincoln General Hospital qualifies him as an expert on this topic. His failure to disqualify his application from consideration for the pharmacy located on city property has stained the otherwise clean image of Lincoln government.

Let us hope that the Railroad Transportation Safety District receives outside counsel before concurring with Mr. Baker that there are no "conflict of interest" problems with his new appointee.

The best available intelligence indicates that the Khmer Rouge, who are now taking over Cambodia, distrust the North Vietnamese and want to keep their country independent of Hanoi.

The Chinese are also reported to be wary of North Vietnam, which could develop into a rival communist power on their southern flank.

The Russians, on the other hand, are trying to bolster Hanoi as a counterweight to Communist China.

The United States would have been better off all along, in the opinion of many experts, abandoning Indochina to the rivalries of the divided communists.

But meanwhile, the opinion is almost unanimous in the backrooms that Kissinger has mishandled the Vietnam issue and that his policies have badly damaged the United States.

Real Indian Country

Santa Fe, N.M. The so-called Wounded Knee trials took place in Lincoln recently. The "American Indian Movement" was prominent, along with some unusual characters among their supporting cast. By mystic incantation and the like, it was sought to convey the impression that the A.I.M. occupies a higher moral level, with closed-circuit access to the Great Spirit. Some of our citizens seemed to fall for this fantasy.

Interesting it is to recall the foregoing while sojourning here in New Mexico, for this is really Indian country. The Indian population is large — as a percentage of the total, perhaps the largest of any state. The numerous tribes and their pueblos are no mere pensioners. They are vigorous and outspoken in behalf of Indian interests.

And what do the Indians of New Mexico think of the A.I.M.?

From an article in the Albuquerque Journal, Thursday, April 17:

"Any Bureau of Indian Affairs officials who negotiate with A.I.M. will be asked to leave. We do not want A.I.M. to speak in our behalf and we do not want them to act in our behalf. THEY SHOULD STAY THE HELL OUT OF HERE."

Can A Small Nation Survive?

Crete, Neb. On October 6, 1938, a Pulitzer prize-winning cartoon by Charles Werner appeared in The Oklahoman showing a tombstone with this inscription: "Czechoslovakia 1919-1938," with a scroll on the grave reading, "Nobel Peace Prize." The message was clear and simple — a tragic end to a small nation that wished to be free and independent.

During World War I, representatives of several small countries of Eastern Europe came to Washington, D.C., and formed a government in exile which was to be Czechoslovakia upon completion of the peace treaties. Perhaps there was no commitment, but there was an understanding in that the new republic depended upon the Big Three for its help and protection against aggressors. The Big Three were the United States, England and France.

We lived with the illusion that World War I was the end of all wars. In Germany, Hitler had built a big war machine and with his allies was ready to strike. On September 1 and 15, 1938, Chamberlain, then prime minister of England, did some "horse-trading" with Hitler and sacrificed Czechoslovakia for "Peace in our time."

In a treaty after World War II, why did the Big Three not provide for a free and independent Czechoslovakia? Here a nation whose thinking and understanding were akin to that of ours became communistic as a result of circumstances beyond her control. Because of her geographical position and realizing she could not depend upon the Big Three for defense against aggressors, Czechoslovakia joined with Russia and became a satellite in Russia's first line of defense against the West. If war against Russia were to break out in Europe, she would supply the cannon fodder for that area.

Is it better for a small country to join forces with a larger country for mutual aid and protection and sacrifice its independence? Eventually it may become a part of the larger country. If we believe in integration, the identity of the races and nationalities will be lost through amalgamation and in the span of years is of no consequence.

At present there is a tendency for all things to become larger. The small farm, the small business, the small college, the small school district and the small legislative unit have been labeled as economically unsound. The small family may be an exception and how about the small nation — can it survive?

Perhaps now is the time for some cartoonist to come up with a suitable epitaph — to South Vietnam.

Acts Of Vandalism

Lincoln, Neb. Citizens for Environmental Improvement, Inc. operates three recycling sites in Lincoln in an effort to provide an opportunity for citizens to practice the conservation of our natural resources. C.E.I. is a non-profit organization providing a service to the community. In addition to the sites located at 10th and O and 2535 N. 33rd, there is a site at 70th and A at the East High parking lot. All of these are open and staffed on Saturdays 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. by volunteers.

In recent months there have been instances of vandalism at the site at the East High parking lot. A set of wooden steps was placed there for one weekend and nearly destroyed by vandals. A truck provided by Dennis Paper Co. has been damaged more than once by vandals.

We cannot continue to suffer the loss of property. The Lincoln Police Department has been alerted to the situation and will be patrolling the area to discourage and prevent these acts of destruction.

Hopefully, C.E.I. will continue to operate this site as it has for the past year.

JIM PATTAVINA
President, C.E.I.

Explanations

In several recent news articles, references were made to the effect that the National Guard helicopter mechanics who resigned and were fired were employed as full-time National Guardsmen. Not true!

We were appointed as National Guard technicians whose positions are filled under the Civil Service System. Once appointed, the technician is required to be a federally recognized member of the National Guard and assigned to an Army National Guard position in the state on a weekend drill basis. These explanations are drawn from the National Guard technician handbook received when I was appointed.

Having been a veteran helicopter crew chief in Vietnam with the U.S.M.C. and a four-year Nebraska Army National Guardsman on weekends, I plan to stay active in the "Guard." I have not "quit the Nebraska Guard," as one article indicated. As a matter of record, I elected a voluntary six-year obligation to the Guard in June, 1974.

I did resign my National Guard technician position due to spur-of-the-moment policy changes, undue harassment and zealous enforcement of the Army Appearance Regulation (AR 600-20), resulting in an intimidating working environment.

In the best interests of all parties, I hope a viable solution will be initiated.

Letting His Hair Down

Lincoln, Neb. As a National Guard technician, I would like to ask a question of the general public.

First of all, I would like to ask the 20-some sets of parents who had their newborns transported aboard Army National Guard helicopters in our Neo-Natal program in the past two years if the aircraft or crew members' performance was hindered as a result of long-haired crews or mechanics. Two technicians who flew on these missions have resigned as a result of the "hair" hassle.

Also, we may ask the family from Humboldt who had a very unfortunate accident during the heavy snow that paralyzed the southeastern part of the state early this winter if the life-saving flight was slowed by long-haired crew members of technicians.

I would like to ask why I am required to wear a wig to my Civil Service job but when weekend drills come around and I am military, I can take my wig off and let my hair down.

Venezuelan Festival

Lincoln, Neb. The Venezuelan Festival, just concluded, has been the most unique event in the history of inter-American relations. I would like to thank The Star staff for their coverage and their interest.

Lesson To Be Learned

Lincoln, Neb. It is my opinion that an Omaha-based department store with a branch located in Lincoln could learn something in community relations.

When a customer went to their office to purchase Shrine Circus tickets, he was told that they sold tickets for the Omaha performances but did not handle them for the Lincoln production.

They will take our money if we buy anything from them, however!

Conflict-of-Interest Problems

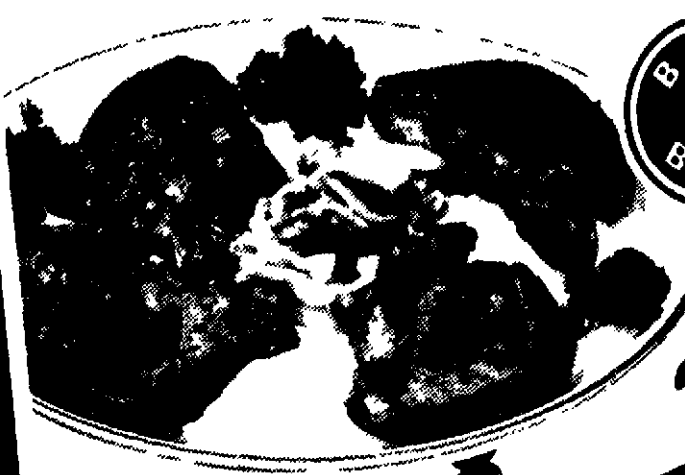

Lincoln, Neb. It is amusing to read Richard Baker's opinion that the newly designated director of the Railroad Transportation Safety District does not have a "conflict of interest."

Perhaps Mr. Baker feels his own experience with the pharmacy at Lincoln General Hospital qualifies him as an expert on this topic. His failure to disqualify his application from consideration for the pharmacy located on city property has stained the otherwise clean image of Lincoln government.

Let us hope that the Railroad Transportation Safety District receives outside counsel before concurring with Mr. Baker that there are no "conflict of interest" problems with its new appointee.

Mrs. Boosalis' Garden Waits, But She's Doing Lots Of Walking

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The flowers and tomatoes will have to wait because Helen Boosalis doesn't have time to plant her garden this spring.

The baking, woodworking and sewing have been set aside. But, there's one pastime she has full time for — walking. Lots of it.

She's on the go from morning till night with one goal in mind. Mrs. Boosalis wants to be Lincoln's next mayor.

The City Council president, described as an "energy freak" by one of the campaigners who's tried to keep up with her, is working double time in an attempt to meet as many people as possible before the May 6 election.

She's greeted workers at industrial plants, shoppers at shopping centers, attended neighborhood meetings and talked to civic groups.

All that effort is aimed at doing what others have failed to do — unseat incumbent Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf.

Tough Task

Mrs. Boosalis acknowledged that the task will be tough to accomplish, even though she ran strong in the primary election. Although she out distanced Schwartzkopf by 13% of the vote, some 53,000 registered Lincolinites didn't go to the polls in April.

While previous councilmen tried four years ago but failed to defeat Schwartzkopf, Mrs. Boosalis thinks she has the experience and political know-how to do the job. She has run for office four times in the past 16 years. She was a winner every time.

Mrs. Boosalis, 55, admits she used to have "lots of hobbies," but her spare time has dwindled over the years as she devoted more time to city affairs.

She's a voracious reader, loves to walk, is a self-proclaimed sports buff. She's redecorated her home at 3019 Jackson Dr. For years she has refurnished furniture.

"I like to work with my hands," she says.

Makes Own Clothes

Her wardrobe is her own creation. She makes all her own clothes.

She didn't always sew. When she and her husband Mike moved to Lincoln in 1951 she was forced to learn how. Until then she couldn't sew a stitch. She didn't have to, she admits, since, "My mother did it all."

Mrs. Boosalis grew up in Minneapolis, where at the age of ten she began working in her father's restaurant.

"It wasn't fancy or anything," she said, "just a small, little, ordinary restaurant. I worked there for years."

Studied At Minnesota

She also studied at the University of Minnesota for two years where she discovered her main interest was in political science. She met Mike, married him and then traveled with him when he joined the Air Force. He is a World War II veteran.

After the war they returned to the Twin Cities where he did graduate work and she held down an office job in the state employment securities division. She moved up to the post of claims deputy supervisor and was the boss of a number of employees before she quit.

In 1951 the Boosalises settled in Lincoln, from where she said, "We never wanted to leave."

Mr. Boosalis is the chief of the University of Nebraska's plant pathology department.

It was her involvement in various civic groups, most notably the League of Women Voters, which sparked Mrs. Boosalis's interest in city government.

Sixteen years ago she decided it was time to practice what she had been preaching and ran for office. The councilwoman has been a visible force in City Hall ever since.

Some of the issues of her first race still are around today, like wanting orderly growth and having a strong mayor form of government.

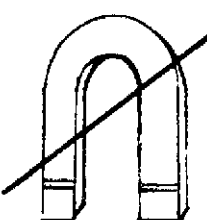

Mrs. Boosalis has been taking issue with Schwartzkopf's leadership abilities. She thinks she can do a better job.

And on May 6, she's asking the voters to let her show them what she can do.

For City Council:

Carson: Being Involved Means Seeking Office

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

To be involved is just part of Jim Carson's make-up. And to Carson that means he is running for the Lincoln City Council.

Carson said he is concerned about the city's growth and quality of life, both as a resident and as a parent.

"I'm not a politician," he said, but is hoping to come out one of the winners May 6 when only four out of eight candidates will be elected. He came in seventh in the primary.

Carson, 40, is self-employed as a insurance salesman and as a real estate broker for Genesis II.

From 1962-73 he was assistant vice president in First Federal's loan department. His interest in real estate blossomed, he became a licensed broker and decided to go into business for himself.

Worked For Railroad

He is probably one of the few candidates who can say he was a "gandy dancer." Carson worked for Union Pacific one summer in high school laying and leveling railroad tracks.

He's had a variety of jobs, he says, including laborer, businessman and now salesman.

He attended the university and served with the Army in Korea.

Carson, 40, 651 Broadview Dr., is married and has two sons. As a result of his boys interests he coached Little Chiefs one summer and has been a den leader in the Cub Scouts. He is also vice president of the Meadowlane Community Organization.

Interest Lack Cited

In campaigning for office Carson has been disheartened by what he calls the lack of interest among Lincolinites.

"It's discouraging to find out how many are not even registered to vote," he says.

People should become involved because, he said, "Government is people, it's business, it's education, it's cultural enhancement, it's life."

Since he is not as well known as several other candidates, Carson has been attending as many debates and meeting as many people as possible to explain his views.

Development 'Inevitable'

One area where candidates differ more than they agree is on the urbanization of the Stevens Creek watershed.

Carson predicts that development into the watershed is inevitable. He thinks the city should "lay out a plan" for the area before it is too late.

Although others favor growth to the north, west and south before eastward expansion, Carson said people want to live in the eastern and southeastern parts of town. He questioned whether the city should restrict citizens from living where they wish.

Carson believes government should allow free enterprise competition to "set the pace and not legislate too much."

Rockefellers To Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller plan to move into their official residence here in the late summer.

Under legislation passed by Congress, the Victorian mansion in northwest Washington, long used as a residence by chiefs of naval operations, has been taken over as a vice presidential residence.

Basic renovation of the house started last year when President Ford was vice president but was suspended after he became President.

Rear Adm. Stanley S. Fine told a Senate committee Thursday that work was resumed after Rockefeller's inauguration. Congress appropriated $315,000 last year, and Fine asked for an appropriation of $104,000 for the coming fiscal year.

Jim Carson

businessman and now salesman.

He attended the university and served with the Army in Korea.

Carson, 40, 651 Broadview Dr., is married and has two sons. As a result of his boys interests he coached Little Chiefs one summer and has been a den leader in the Cub Scouts. He is also vice president of the Meadowlark Community Organization.

Interest Lack Cited

In campaigning for office Carson has been disheartened by what he calls the lack of interest among Lincolinites.

"It's discouraging to find out how many are not even registered to vote," he says.

People should become involved because, he said, "Government is people, it's business, it's education, it's cultural enhancement, it's life."

Since he is not as well known as several other candidates, Carson has been attending as many debates and meeting as many people as possible to explain his views.

Development 'Inevitable'

One area where candidates differ more than they agree is on the urbanization of the Stevens Creek watershed.

Carson predicts that development into the watershed is inevitable. He thinks the city should "lay out a plan" for the area before it is too late.

Although others favor growth to the north, west and south before eastward expansion, Carson said people want to live in the eastern and southeastern parts of town. He questioned whether the city should restrict citizens from living where they wish.

Carson believes government should allow free enterprise competition to "set the pace and not legislate too much."

Rockefellers To Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller plan to move into their official residence here in the late summer.

Under legislation passed by Congress, the Victorian mansion in northwest Washington, long used as a residence by chiefs of naval operations, has been taken over as a vice presidential residence.

Basic renovation of the house started last year when President Ford was vice president but was suspended after he became President.

Rear Adm. Stanley S. Fine told a Senate committee Thursday that work was resumed after Rockefeller's inauguration. Congress appropriated $315,000 last year, and Fine asked for an appropriation of $104,000 for the coming fiscal year.

Defections Reported

Sarpy Courthouse Dedication Sunday

Papillion — Formal dedication of the new Sarpy County Courthouse and Hall of Justice will take place Sunday at 2 p.m., at Papillion.

Gov. J. James Exon will deliver the principal address. Bands from the Strategic Air Command and give high schools in the county — Bellevue, Bryan, Gretna, Papillion and Platteview — will perform.

A special feature will be presentation of the Papillion Centennial Fountain to the county. The fountain is constructed in front of the Hall of Justice and will be turned on for the first time Sunday.

Donations from individuals and businesses financed the fountain. Donor names are placed on a plaque which is mounted on a large granite boulder from a Sarpy County quarry which is adjacent to the fountain.

A time capsule containing historical data from the donors will be buried at the fountain site during the afternoon. The capsule will also include a copper box which was taken from the cornerstone of the former courthouse, now the Papillion City Hall. The box contained souvenirs of the 1922 cornerstone ceremony along with two copies of the Papillion Times of 1875, the date the first courthouse in Papillion was dedicated.

Special recognition will be given several Sarpy residents born in the county who have lived here 85 years or more.

County Board Chairman Norman Magnusson of Bellevue will accept the courthouse and fountain. Ray Jungers, Bellevue, chairman of the Sarpy Building Authority, will present the courthouse. Leo Eckert, president of the Papillion Chamber of Commerce, will present the fountain.

A special flag, marking Sarpy's designation as a bicentennial county, will be raised during opening ceremonies. A tour of the new facilities and free refreshments will be offered after the program.

'Gordon' Canceled Due To Complaints

Alliance (AP) — An x-rated movie has been canceled at the Alliance theater upon urging of the City Council.

Three of the five members of the council viewed about 30 minutes of the film "Flesh Gordon" and told manager Ray Watkins not to show it.

Watkins canceled the showings claiming "it wasn't my cup of tea, but then who is to say what is anyone's cup of tea."

The councilmen received numerous complaints from women and organizations desiring that the film not be shown.

Two councilmen not present were contacted after the showing and both agreed with the other three.

According to Mayor Ed Lewis the council members also discussed the possibility of visting newsstands in Alliance.

"We have to treat everybody alike," said Councilman Anthony Yeager.

Sheriff Don Underwood, of Box Butte County, said Watkins was advised not to show the film or it would be confiscated and charges would be filed. Underwood said the film portrayed lewd and immoral sex acts.

Attendance has risen 40% at the theater over last year due to what Watkins' termed presentation of a variety of shows.

He said "Flesh Gordon" ran in Scotts Bluff and Chadron and due to its cancelation here he could lose as much as $1,200.

Two Nebraska Youths To Get Alert Awards

Omaha (AP) — Two Nebraskans will become recipients of "Alert Youth Awards" at the 26th annual convention of the Nebraska Association of Mutual Insurance Agents.

Kurt Harte, 7, of Inman, and David Dunlap, 8, of Craig, are the two youngsters to receive awards from Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan May 1 during the convention, which is to be held in Omaha's New Tower Inn.

At age 6, Kurt saved 17-month-old Kent, his brother, by rescuing him from a stock tank.

On June 10, 1974, Kent, floating face down in the tank, was noticed by Kurt and his younger sister. Kurt pulled him over the side and sent his sister after their mother.

When Mrs. Joe Harte arrived on the scene she administered artificial resuscitation and rushed Kent to the hospital, where he recovered with no ill effects.

In April, 1974, David Dunlap was home alone with his sister, Penny, 7.

David opened the basement door and was met by fire and smoke. He slammed the door shut and took Penny outside. He then made sure all windows and doors to the outside of the house were closed.

The youth attempted to throw the main electrical switch on the farmyard power pole, but wasn't able to get the cover off. He then ran to the road leading to Craig and attempted to stop passing motorists.

When his mother returned she called the fire department and the fire was extinguished.

By closing all doors and windows David prevented the fire from spreading into upper parts of the home. The result was extensive smoke damage, but the flames were confined to the basement.

Rain-Soaked Soil Kept Gas Consumption Down

Officials in Nebraska report a gasoline surplus this spring, partly because April rains kept farmers out of their fields.

"Our fuel consumption in Nebraska is very definitely controlled by agriculture," said George Watters, executive director of the Nebraska Petroleum Marketers.

Because of the surplus, Watters said, "the market is generally down a penny or two."

Tax Commissioner William Peters, who also heads Nebraska's energy office, said weather has influenced gasoline supplies.

"Normally in April we start using a lot of fuel. This spring we haven't had an opportunity to use much in agriculture yet," he said.

Peters expects Nebraska farmers to consume the usual amount of fuel as soon as rains stop.

Nebraska's stock of gasoline totaled 233.3 million barrels April 11, an increase of about 10 million barrels or 4.5% from one year earlier, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

ABP Gains Time, Sale Okay In Bankruptcy Court

Omaha (AP) — Financially troubled American Beef Packers Inc. (ABP) of Omaha made two important gains in Federal Bankruptcy Court Monday.

ABP officials gained time and money in their attempts to rejuvenate the beef packing giant, and bring it back into operation.

In January, ABP filed for protection and reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Act.

Since then, ABP President Frank West has been on the move in an attempt to secure a big loan and sell assets to come up with the needed funds to begin paying off an estimated 8,000 creditors, as prescribed under a plan of arrangement filed by ABP earlier this month.

Monday, Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford approved the proposed sale of ABP's Dumas, Tex., plant to Swift Fresh Meats Co., a subsidiary of Swift and Co. of Chicago.

The sale price for the $23 million, ultra-modern facility which opened just one year ago, will be about $18 million. About $8 million of the proceeds will go into a proposed $12 million ABP trust fund to begin paying creditors, according to Thomas J. Clark, ABP vice president for finance.

During the hearing, West told the court he had sounded out several large meat packing firms such as Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., Armour and Co., and Wilson, but that Swift had made the only favorable offer under the circumstances.

West said he felt the offer a fair one, and that the proposed sale is a key factor in ABP's plans to retrench.

There were no objections to the sale raised during the hearing. However, Judge Crawford denied two motions — an intervening motion filed by attorneys for union workers at the Dumas plant, and a request by attorneys for the Economic Development Administration that a July 1 date be set for conclusion of the negotiations for the sale.

Attorneys for both ABP and Swift said negotiations for the sale have been proceeding, and that approval of the Justice Department and the Swift board of directors are expected by May 31.

The motion to intervene involved the stipulation that current union contracts with ABP be recognized by Swift. Swift and ABP attorneys objected, and Crawford said the "successor clause" set down by the National Labor Relations Board is not at question in the bankruptcy proceedings. The clause allows for the continuance of labor contracts when a plant is sold. If the clause is valid, the contracts will be honored, Crawford said. If not, another court will have to take up the case.

In addition to approving the sale, Crawford also delayed a hearing scheduled Friday on an application to appoint a receiver to run ABP.

The states of Iowa and Nebraska and the Securities and Exchange Commission asked that the receiver be named for the firm.

ABP attorneys asked that the hearing be continued, and Crawford rescheduled the hearing for June 4.

Hearings Urged On R.I. Loan

Washington (AP) — Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., has asked for public hearings on a bill to provide a $100 million federal loan to the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad.

In a letter to Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., chairman of the House transportation and commerce subcommittee, McCollister urged the hearings because "the tenuous situation of the railroad is a threat to both its employees and to the thousands of farmers and businessmen who rely on service by the railroad."

McCollister said evidence on the long-range prospects of salvaging the Rock Island has been "conflicting," and more "hard evidence" is needed before the issue can be resolved.

Noting that the U.S. Railway Association rejected a big loan for the Rock Island, McCollister said he has not sponsored legislation calling for the federal loan because he wants to be convinced that the loan will rescue the Rock Island, rather than postponing its collapse.

"I cannot support a bail-out loan that is really just a give-away in disguise," McCollister said.

On the other side of the argument, McCollister pointed out that the trustee appointed by the Bankruptcy Court to handle the Rock Island's affairs has given indication that future prospects for the line are much more promising.

McCollister said the blame for the Rock Island's predicament should go principally to the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC).

The Omaha lawmaker said the situation indicates a need for "renewed congressional oversight over the disgraceful bottleneck which the ICC has become."

"What we need is a policy for long-run solutions to our rail transportation problems, not short-term, stop-gap, bail-outs after railroads deteriorate so badly that saving them at all becomes a legitimate concern," said McCollister.

Former Nebraskans Receive Viet Baby Early

Fort Sam Houston, Tex. — Leah Thuy Van may have arrived a month or six weeks "premature," but her new parents, former Nebraskans Capt. and Mrs. Michael Smith, couldn't be happier. "I can't wait to start dressing her up in little pink clothes," Mrs. Smith said of their newly adopted baby, one of those airlifted from Vietnam.

Smith, who is assigned to the nursing subjects branch of the Basic Health Services Division at the Academy of Health Sciences, U.S. Army, and Mrs. Smith are both registered nurses, graduates of Bryan Hospital School of Nursing in Lincoln, Neb.

They have a son, Jamie, 3½, who is just as happy as his parents over the new 5-month-old addition to their household.

Mrs. Smith explained that she and her husband began thinking of adopting a baby from an Asian country while they were stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., where some of their friends had adopted babies from Korea and Vietnam.

They applied in October 1973 and were notified in November 1974 that their application had been approved. Leah was born Nov. 2, 1974, and on last Jan. 2 the Smiths receive a photo of her and a letter asking if they would accept her for adoption.

They replied that they would and immediately began seeking a visa for her. They were notified to expect Leah to arrive sometime in May, but because of the emergency baby airlift she arrived in Chicago in April.

Smith was graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan University with a B.S. in sociology in 1970 and entered service in the Army Nurse Corps in January, 1971.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smith, reside at Scottsbluff, Ne. Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Jameson, formerly of Elsie, Neb., now live in Boulder, Colo.

Cordova Road Paving Is To Be Urged Again

Seward County residents in favor of paving the Cordova road plan to approach State Engineer Thomas Doyle again shortly, a spokesman for the group said Monday.

Bob Rhodes of Cordova said he sees no reason why the state does not put the 7½-mile direct road on the state system. Rhodes said the Seward County Board has gone on record favoring it, and that, he said, should be all the state needs.

Cordova road supporters last Friday collided with another group which wants the road between Beaver Crossing and Friend paved and put on the state system. The showdown occurred at a State Highway Commission meeting.

The state is turning a section of road on the state system over to Seward County; in return, the state is supposed to pick an unpaved stretch to replace it on the state system.

Rhodes said the York County and Fillmore County commissioners, and the towns of Utica, Milligan and Shelby all support the Cordova road. Saline County, as well as Beaver Crossing and Friend, want the Beaver Crossing-Friend road.

The advantages of the Cordova road, Rhodes said, include the fact that Seward County has already replaced the bridge over Beaver Creek.

Rhodes said the Cordova road will also provide better connections for north-south traffic and will be cheaper. He said Beaver Crossing-Friend proponents gave the erroneous impression Friday that their road will be cheaper.

State estimates are that the Cordova road will cost $2.6 million in state and local funds to pave, while the Beaver Crossing road will cost $2.8 million, he said.

York County Commissioner Frank Whitmore also favors the Cordova road.

Foul Play Is Suspected In Orchard Man's Death

Orchard (AP) — Authorities said Monday foul play was suspected in the death of a rural Orchard man, Merlin Mosel, in his mid-40s.

Mosel's body was found in a ditch one-quarter of a mile south of Orchard Sunday by a rural Orchard man.

Antelope County Sheriff Vern Hixson said no one has been arrested but the case was under investigation by his office and the State Patrol.

He said there were "several possible leads."

Mosel was found lying face down in a ditch and had bruises on his head. He had been last seen about 2 a.m. Sunday leaving the Orchard Legion Club.

It was reported he often walked to his rural home because he did not have a driver's license.

Acquaintances said they had seen money in Mosel's billfold earlier in the evening, but the sheriff said when Mosel was found he had only change and a check.

Hixson said an autopsy performed in Lincoln Sunday indicated cerebral hemorrhaging was the cause of death, and the time of death was approximately 3 a.m.

Mosel is survived by his wife and several children.

Former Nebraskans Receive Viet Baby Early

Fort Sam Houston, Tex. — Leah Thuy Van may have arrived a month or six weeks "premature," but her new parents, former Nebraskans Capt. and Mrs. Michael Smith, couldn't be happier. "I can't wait to start dressing her up in little pink clothes," Mrs. Smith said of their newly adopted baby, one of those airlifted from Vietnam.

Smith, who is assigned to the nursing subjects branch of the Basic Health Services Division at the Academy of Health Sciences, U.S. Army, and Mrs. Smith are both registered nurses, graduates of Bryan Hospital School of Nursing in Lincoln, Neb.

They have a son, Jamie, 3½, who is just as happy as his parents over the new 5-month-old addition to their household.

Mrs. Smith explained that she and her husband began thinking of adopting a baby from an Asian country while they were stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., where some of their friends had adopted babies from Korea and Vietnam.

They applied in October 1973 and were notified in November 1974 that their application had been approved. Leah was born Nov. 2, 1974, and on last Jan. 2 the Smiths receive a photo of her and a letter asking if they would accept her for adoption.

They replied that they would and immediately began seeking a visa for her. They were notified to expect Leah to arrive sometime in May, but because of the emergency baby airlift she arrived in Chicago in April.

Smith was graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan University with a B.S. in sociology in 1970 and entered service in the Army Nurse Corps in January, 1971.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smith, reside at Scottsbluff, Ne. Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Jameson, formerly of Elsie, Neb., now live in Boulder, Colo.

Cordova Road Paving Is To Be Urged Again

Seward County residents in favor of paving the Cordova road plan to approach State Engineer Thomas Doyle again shortly, a spokesman for the group said Monday.

Bob Rhodes of Cordova said he sees no reason why the state does not put the 7½-mile direct road on the state system. Rhodes said the Seward County Board has gone on record favoring it, and that, he said, should be all the state needs.

Cordova road supporters last Friday collided with another group which wants the road between Beaver Crossing and Friend paved and put on the state system. The showdown occurred at a State Highway Commission meeting.

The state is turning a section of road on the state system over to Seward County; in return, the state is supposed to pick an unpaved stretch to replace it on the state system.

Rhodes said the York County and Fillmore County commissioners, and the towns of Utica, Milligan and Shelby all support the Cordova road. Saline County, as well as Beaver Crossing and Friend, want the Beaver Crossing-Friend road.

The advantages of the Cordova road, Rhodes said, include the fact that Seward County has already replaced the bridge over Beaver Creek.

Rhodes said the Cordova road will also provide better connections for north-south traffic and will be cheaper. He said Beaver Crossing-Friend proponents gave the erroneous impression Friday that their road will be cheaper.

State estimates are that the Cordova road will cost $2.6 million in state and local funds to pave, while the Beaver Crossing road will cost $2.8 million, he said.

York County Commissioner Frank Whitmore also favors the Cordova road.

NMA Committee Will Examine Malpractice Insurance Issues

A committee to deal with malpractice insurance issues was formed Monday by the Nebraska Medical Association's House of Delegates.

The cost of malpractice insurance has become an issue with both doctors and consumers.

Also, several insurance companies no longer offer malpractice policies because of legal expenses and what the companies consider exorbitant malpractice settlements awarded by juries.

Nebraska Medical Association President Warren G. Bosley of Grand Island was authorized to assemble a committee to seek legislative reform in liability insurance.

Delegates asked their study committee on Professional Standard Review Organization to proceed with their operational planning for a potential PSRO.

They did not authorize the actual setting up of the unit.

The PSRO, required by federal law by next Jan. 1, would review patient hospital use by those whose care is paid for by Medicaid and Medicare.

If a PSRO is not set up by the deadline date, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has the right to designate a PSRO agency.

The delegates authorized the ad hoc committee to seek funding from government and private sources to continue planning for implementation.

However, they decided not to borrow up to $75,000 from Blue Cross-Blue Shield to complete operational planning of any future PSRO.

They also decided not to have the NMA's Foundation for Medical Care contract with Nebraska Blue-Cross-Blue Shield to become the data computing processor for any future PSRO.

Outgoing NMA President James H. Dunlap, M.D., Norfolk, said the medical profession is apprehensive of PSRO because it represents a "continued infringement of government."

Further, he said it carries with it the "threat of cookbook medicine," as well as the potential for breaking the confidentiality of patients' records.

"The government originally set up as a cost containment item," Dunlap continued. "But the government is just giving lip service to our (doctors') main concern — the preservation of quality care for patients."

Delegates also voiced their objection to an HEW regulation restricting patients' Medicare payments to 75% of the 1973 fee levels. The new reimbursement scale takes effect May 14.

Lincoln Woman On Disaster Mission

The director of nursing and health programs for the Cornhusker Division of the American Red Cross "rushed over to the Health Department for an arm full of immunizations" first thing Monday morning.

Miss Estes has made the scene of a "wild and very long list of natural disasters," she told the Star Monday while frantically preparing for her Tuesday morning departure.

But this assignment to Guam is her first outside the United States.

She is one of 16 Americans, but possibly the only nurse, being sent by the American National Red Cross to assist with the refugee operation on Guam.

Her duty will be to help evaluate the refugees' health needs and "try to see those needs are met," she said. The other Americans will deal more directly with "the logistics" — food, clothing, housing and bedding for the South Vietnamese. "This is a most challenging situation and one of great need," Miss Estes said.

State Oats, Barley Crops Reported 40%, 35% Planted

Nebraska's oats and barley plantings range from zero to nearly completed in several counties, averaging statewide 40% and 35%, respectively, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Monday.

Last year at this time, virtually all oats and barley were planted, the weekly crop-weather report stated.

Continued rainy weather has caused the delay, the bureau said, although rainfall was quite sparse over the western portion of the state during the past week.

Topsoil moisture supplies are short in 22%, adequate in 63% and surplus in 15% of the counties reporting as of last Friday. Subsoil moisture supplies were said to be short in 82% of the counties, compared to only 4% last year at the same time.

Winter wheat is in mostly fair to good condition statewide, the agricultural experts stated. Reports range from poor to good with two excellent ratings in the southeast.

Reports indicate the weather improved the wheat condition, but additional rains will be needed as the season progresses. Soil-borne mosaic was reported in several counties in the southeast and east central districts.

Sugar beet planting is continuing with good progress in the west and most counties report being nearly completed.

Precipitation via sections since the beginning of the growing season, April 1, as compared to longtime averages, follows:

Northwest — .90 of an inch (1975); 1.33 inches (normal). North Central — 1.40; 1.60. Northeast — 3.20; 1.94. Central — 2.80; 1.73. East Central — 2.70; 2.13. Southwest — 1.00; 1.41. South Central — 1.80; 1.71. Southeast — 2.50; 2.15.

New Meridian School Gets 'Unofficial' Okay

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Tobias — A new rural school for the Meridian district now holding classes in three towns moved one step closer to reality as more than 250 enthusiastic patrons gathered here Monday night.

A straw vote indicated preference for a location 1.8 miles west of Daykin on the south side of Hwy. 4, one of six sites suggested. The group also resoundingly endorsed a $1.5 million K-12 proposal rather than a less costly plan which would house the lower six grades (K-5) in existing facilities at Daykin.

The vote was 175-39, with another 35 votes going for a still lower proposal. The alternate plans were for bond issues of $1.4 million and $1.25 million.

The seven-year-old district currently sends its high schoolers to Tobias while operating a K-3 program in Daykin and a 4-6 program in Alexandria. Its area includes land in Jefferson, Thayer and Saline Counties.

Reminding that Monday night's vote was unofficial, Superintendent Allen Gross promised a legal election "no later than May 27" on the proposed bond issue. If the measure carries, he said a contract hopefully can be let by this September and a building constructed by the fall of 1976.

Monday's discussion centered on whether a 52,500 square foot school as envisioned by the district steering committee would be too costly at $1.4 million to $1.5 million. Board member Phillip DeWald of rural Hebron said he still favors a new school but reminded that original estimates were $1 million.

However, several persons drew applause when responding that the plan shouldn't be scaled down too far. Some board members noted that approximately 5,500 square feet has already been removed from the plan.

"Let's scrap this mickey mouse three-school system and get into one decent school," said a high school student. "Our graduates are the laughing stock of this area and the money we're spending on upkeep is going for what I call junk."

When it was suggested that the district's population may decline in the future, board member Jack Westerhoff of Alexandria said some other districts might be absorbed later.

Schuyler Man Killed In Crash

Schuyler (AP) — A Schuyler man was killed Monday afternoon in a car-train accident here.

Officials identified the dead man as Richard Faltys, 22. Faltys was struck at the Highway 15 and 13th Street rail crossing in Schuyler.

Officials said he was traveling south on Highway 15 and apparently saw a slow moving east bound train, but did not see the west bound Union Pacific freight which struck his vehicle.

Feedlot To Buy Farmer's Land In Well Dispute

A Fairbury farmer and Roode Packing Co. have reached a settlement on alleged pollution of groundwater.

Lanny Icenogle, chief of the State Department of Environmental Control's (DEC) feedlot permit program, said Monday Roode has agreed to purchase some land involved in the dispute from Robert L. Shepherd.

Shepherd had protested the DEC's plans to issue Roode's feedlot a permit on the grounds that the feedlot was polluting his well with nitrates and bacteria.

However, Icenogle said evidence that Roode was the source of Shepherd's problem was "inconclusive." Roode has installed pollution controls to the DEC's satisfaction, he said.

The DEC still plans to monitor the well to determine whether there really is a problem.

In the meantime, Icenogle said the DEC is still holding Roode's permit.

Superior Accident Victim, 16, Dies

Superior — A two-car head-on crash Sunday afternoon at Superior claimed the life Monday morning of Kim Squires, 16, of Superior, the State Patrol said.

Patrolman Edward Clark said the Squires auto was southbound on the Superior Bypass on the northeast edge of Superior when her car was in collision with a northbound vehicle driven by John Myers, 21, also of Superior.

Clark said the Squires girl died of massive head injuries at the Nuckolls County Hospital in Superior early Monday.

College PEO Installs Officers

Carolyn Hart of Weeping Water recently was installed president of the PEO College Group.

Other new officers are Lisa Lawson of Genoa, vice president; Karen McCaw, secretary; Barb Blue of Omaha, treasurer; Suellen Sundell of Wakefield, chaplain; and Lynette Wiegert of Plainview, guard.

He said Myers suffered a broken jaw and was listed in satisfactory condition at the hospital.

A passenger in the Squires car, Christine Barnes, 15, of Superior, suffered a broken pelvis, dislocated hip, broken left arm, whiplash and other injuries, Clark said. He said she was listed in stable condition at the hospital.

Second Degree Murderer Doesn't Need Commutation

A parolee convicted of second degree murder can be discharged without having his sentence commuted, Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas said Monday.

John Greenholtz, chairman of the State Parole Board, said the board requested the opinion because it has three parolees convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment whom the board would like to discharge.

The individuals have served the 10-year minimum sentence and have been on parole for more than five years. He declined to release their names.

He said the board was not certain whether the Pardon Board had to commute the sentences before the parolees could be discharged. This commutation is required before a person convicted of first degree murder can be paroled.

"My company doesn't have a retirement plan... but I can build my personal plan — a 100% tax-deductible IRA — at Commercial Federal Savings!"

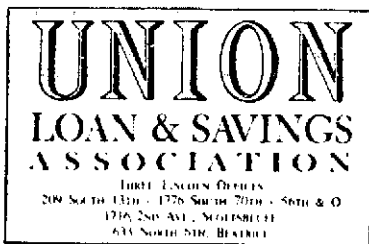

That's right! Now, any worker not participating in an existing retirement plan can put up to $1,500 or 15% of earned income — whichever is less — into a personal retirement plan, an IRA (Individual Retirement Account), at Commercial Federal. And every penny is tax-deductible! Even the earnings are tax-free until the funds are withdrawn, presumably at retirement, when your tax rate will probably be lower.

- Beginning any time between ages 59½ and 70½, you can have your money however you please—in a lump sum, in monthly installments, or annually—as you choose.
- If you leave a company in which you have a vested interest in a retirement plan, you can invest those funds in an IRA at Commercial Federal without paying any Federal income tax if you do it within 60 days.
- You can't lose! Growth is assured, with no market fluctuations to worry about!
- No salesman's commissions to pay, year after year.

Commercial Federal Savings pays higher interest on your IRA than any bank! ANY BANK! As soon as there's $1,000 in your IRA, the money can be put into a high-rate Savings Certificate and earn as much as 7½% a year, compounded continuously, for an effective annual yield of 8.058%.

Figured on that basis, an annual contribution of $1,500 to an IRA—contributed either in a lump sum or in installments—would, in thirty years amount to a whopping $189,211.34!

Nuernberger Squelches 84th St. Plans

Despite City Council members' interest in turning 84th St. into a major east-side traffic carrier, County Engineer Marvin Nuernberger told the lawmakers Monday night to forget it.

Nuernberger said the resurfacing of 84th St., most of which is a county road, can't be put off any longer.

The road, running along the city's eastern limits, is in "bad shape", the county engineer said, and needs immediate repair because it's a heavy truck route.

Council members met with Nuernberger to discuss whether the city could work with the county in widening 84th to four lanes the entire distance between Hwy. 2 on the south and Hwy. 6 on the north.

because lawmakers preferred the present policy which apparently would cost the city less than to switch to non-uniformed policemen.

The council was more concerned that private clubs be treated the same as other outlets, regardless of the policemen's attire.

"Wear Something"

As Councilman Max Denney quipped, "We just want them to wear something and not go in the nude."

Denney and Acting Police Chief Dale Adams said that liquor dealers are divided on the issue of uniformed versus non-uniformed.

Although not actually objecting to a change in police policy, Adams said several problems could arise if non-uniformed officers replaced uniformed ones.

Bar owners might charge police with "spying" on them

Little Relation Found In Spending, Winning

There was little relation between campaign spending and finishing place in the primary among the candidates for City Council.

That was one bit of information that could be gleaned from the financial reports that were on file in the city clerk's office by the Monday deadline.

Three of the seven losers failed to file the report on time. They were John King, Ron Kurtenbach and Bob Muggy.

The biggest spender of the candidates was William Thierstein. He reported spending $2,977. He came in sixth in the primary.

Thierstein's report shows he received a total of $1,762 in the primary, including a $1,108 contribution from himself. He also took a $3,350 loan.

Four other candidates reported four-figure spending. They were, in order of amount, Steve Tiwald, Dick Baker, Bob Sikyta and Steve Cook.

Among those four the order of finish was Tiwald, fifth, Baker, fourth, Sikyta, second, and Cook, first.

The reports show that during the primary Tiwald spent $3,798 and received $4,227. Baker spent $1,751 and took in $2,776. Sikyta spent $1,481 and received $2,106. Cook spent $1,472 and received $897.

Three primary winners whoed three-figure spending. They were, in order, Jim Carson, who came in eighth in the primary, Bob Jeambey, who came in third in the primary and Mary Rogge, who came in eighth.

Their reports showed that Carson spent $591 and received $329. Jeambey spend $261 and received $790 and Mary Rogge spent $148 and received $10.

Of the four losers who filed reports, all four showed no spending, except for Bruce Douthit, who reported the $10 filing fee as an expense. The same four also reported no contributions.

In the mayoral race Jo D. Bragg filed a report which showed she spent $1,302 during primary and received $1,435. She finished far behind Helen Boosalis and Sam Schwartzkopf in the balloting.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey noted that consultants updating the city-county Comprehensive Plan have suggested that 84th be the major east route for motorists.

Nuernberger said 84th "is not going to be the type of street you want it to be — it's too late."

Besides needing immediate repair, he said there are too many entrances onto the street to qualify the roadway as a safe freeway.

Nuernberger said he believes the proposed east-side bypass is dead and warned that "people had better wake up and realize that we need an alternate."

He suggested that 112th St. might be such an alternate to carry the traffic.

Nuernberger is planning to overlay the county portion of 84th with three inches of asphaltic concrete and to lay crushed rock on the shoulders. Anticipated federal funds would pick up 70% of the project's total cost of $350,000. The county would pay the rest.

The stretch of 84th from about South to just north of O St. are within the city limits and therefore under the city's urban highway system.

In a housekeeping matter, the council amended the city code to comply with the City Charter, designating the police and fire chiefs as department heads, not division heads.

In other business, the council:

Ordinances, Third Reading

—Approved pit of Quail Valley 1st Add.

Special Squad

Six new men would be needed to form a special tavern check squad to do the job now being down by beat patrolmen and cruiser officers.

The special squad also would investigate serious crimes and gather information on other cases, Adams reported.

Councilman John Robinson said he believed enough money was being channeled into liquor enforcement and consequently didn't see a need to hike the costs any further by hiring a new crew.

Oil, Gas Carrier Rates Hiked

Petroleum carriers Monday got a 6% rate increase from the Nebraska Public Service Commission, instead of the 8% increase they originally asked.

James Paine, commission rate officer, said the action amounts to a 2% rate increase, since the new rate includes a surcharge granted last year and a 4% emergency increase in February.

In a unanimous vote, the commission put the new rates into effect May 15.

Profit Of 7%

The 6% increase ensures that carrier costs will total 93 cents for every dollar of revenue, leaving a 7% profit.

Commission auditors examined the books of five petroleum carriers to determine what increase should be allowed. The firms were Wynne Transport, Ruan Transport, Herman Bros., Wheeler Transport and Central Transport Co.

Operating ratios, computed by accountant Kip Hendrickson, ranged from 84 cents to 97 cents in expenses per dollar of income. Four of the firms had operating ratios below 93 cents per dollar.

Hike Opposed

The increase was protested by 13 firms including Farmland Industries, Agrico Chemical Co., Great Western Sugar Co., Amoco Oil Co. and Phillips Petroleum.

In its examination, the commission determined that Wynne, a non-union carrier from Omaha, controlled 32% of the traffic. Herman Bros. Inc. of Omaha handled 27% of the traffic and Ruan hauled 9%.

In other commission action Monday, Paine reported that five railroads have filed for an emergency 7% rate increase on Nebraska traffic to bring intrastate rates in line with a 7% rate hike approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission for interstate shipments.

The railroads are also asking for an increase in the shrinkage allowance on grain shipments from one eighth percent to one fourth percent.

No Electioneering

Commissioner Duane Gay of Columbus also advised commission staff members not to participate in election campaigns during working hours.

Gay said he has received a complaint on active participation on campaigns by commission staff members during working hours. Gay said it involved the Lincoln Municipal elections.

"It's no big deal," he said. "I just don't want our employees working on campaigns on state time. What they do on their own time is something else."

Support Delinquents Would Be Identified

Fathers who have been avoiding child support payments would be uncovered with the help of a computer, according to a plan by Kandra Hahn, clerk of the District Court.

Ms. Hahn wants to purchase a computer system which will pinpoint delinquent child support payments over the past two years, plus keep a running tally of delinquent payments.

"We'll have thousands more delinquencies than the court will be able to process," Ms. Hahn admitted. But at least the statistics will be available.

Some fathers (usually the man is ordered to pay child support) have been hiding in the current record system, which shows how much a person has paid, but not to who or how much is delinquent.

Lack of statistics was a major problem last year when the Unicameral studied the state's child support system.

From that study came a law allowing the courts to initiate contempt proceedings against parents who don't make child support payments.

The clerk of the district court's office is checking individual child support cases and has been certifying 25 delinquent cases each week for possible court action.

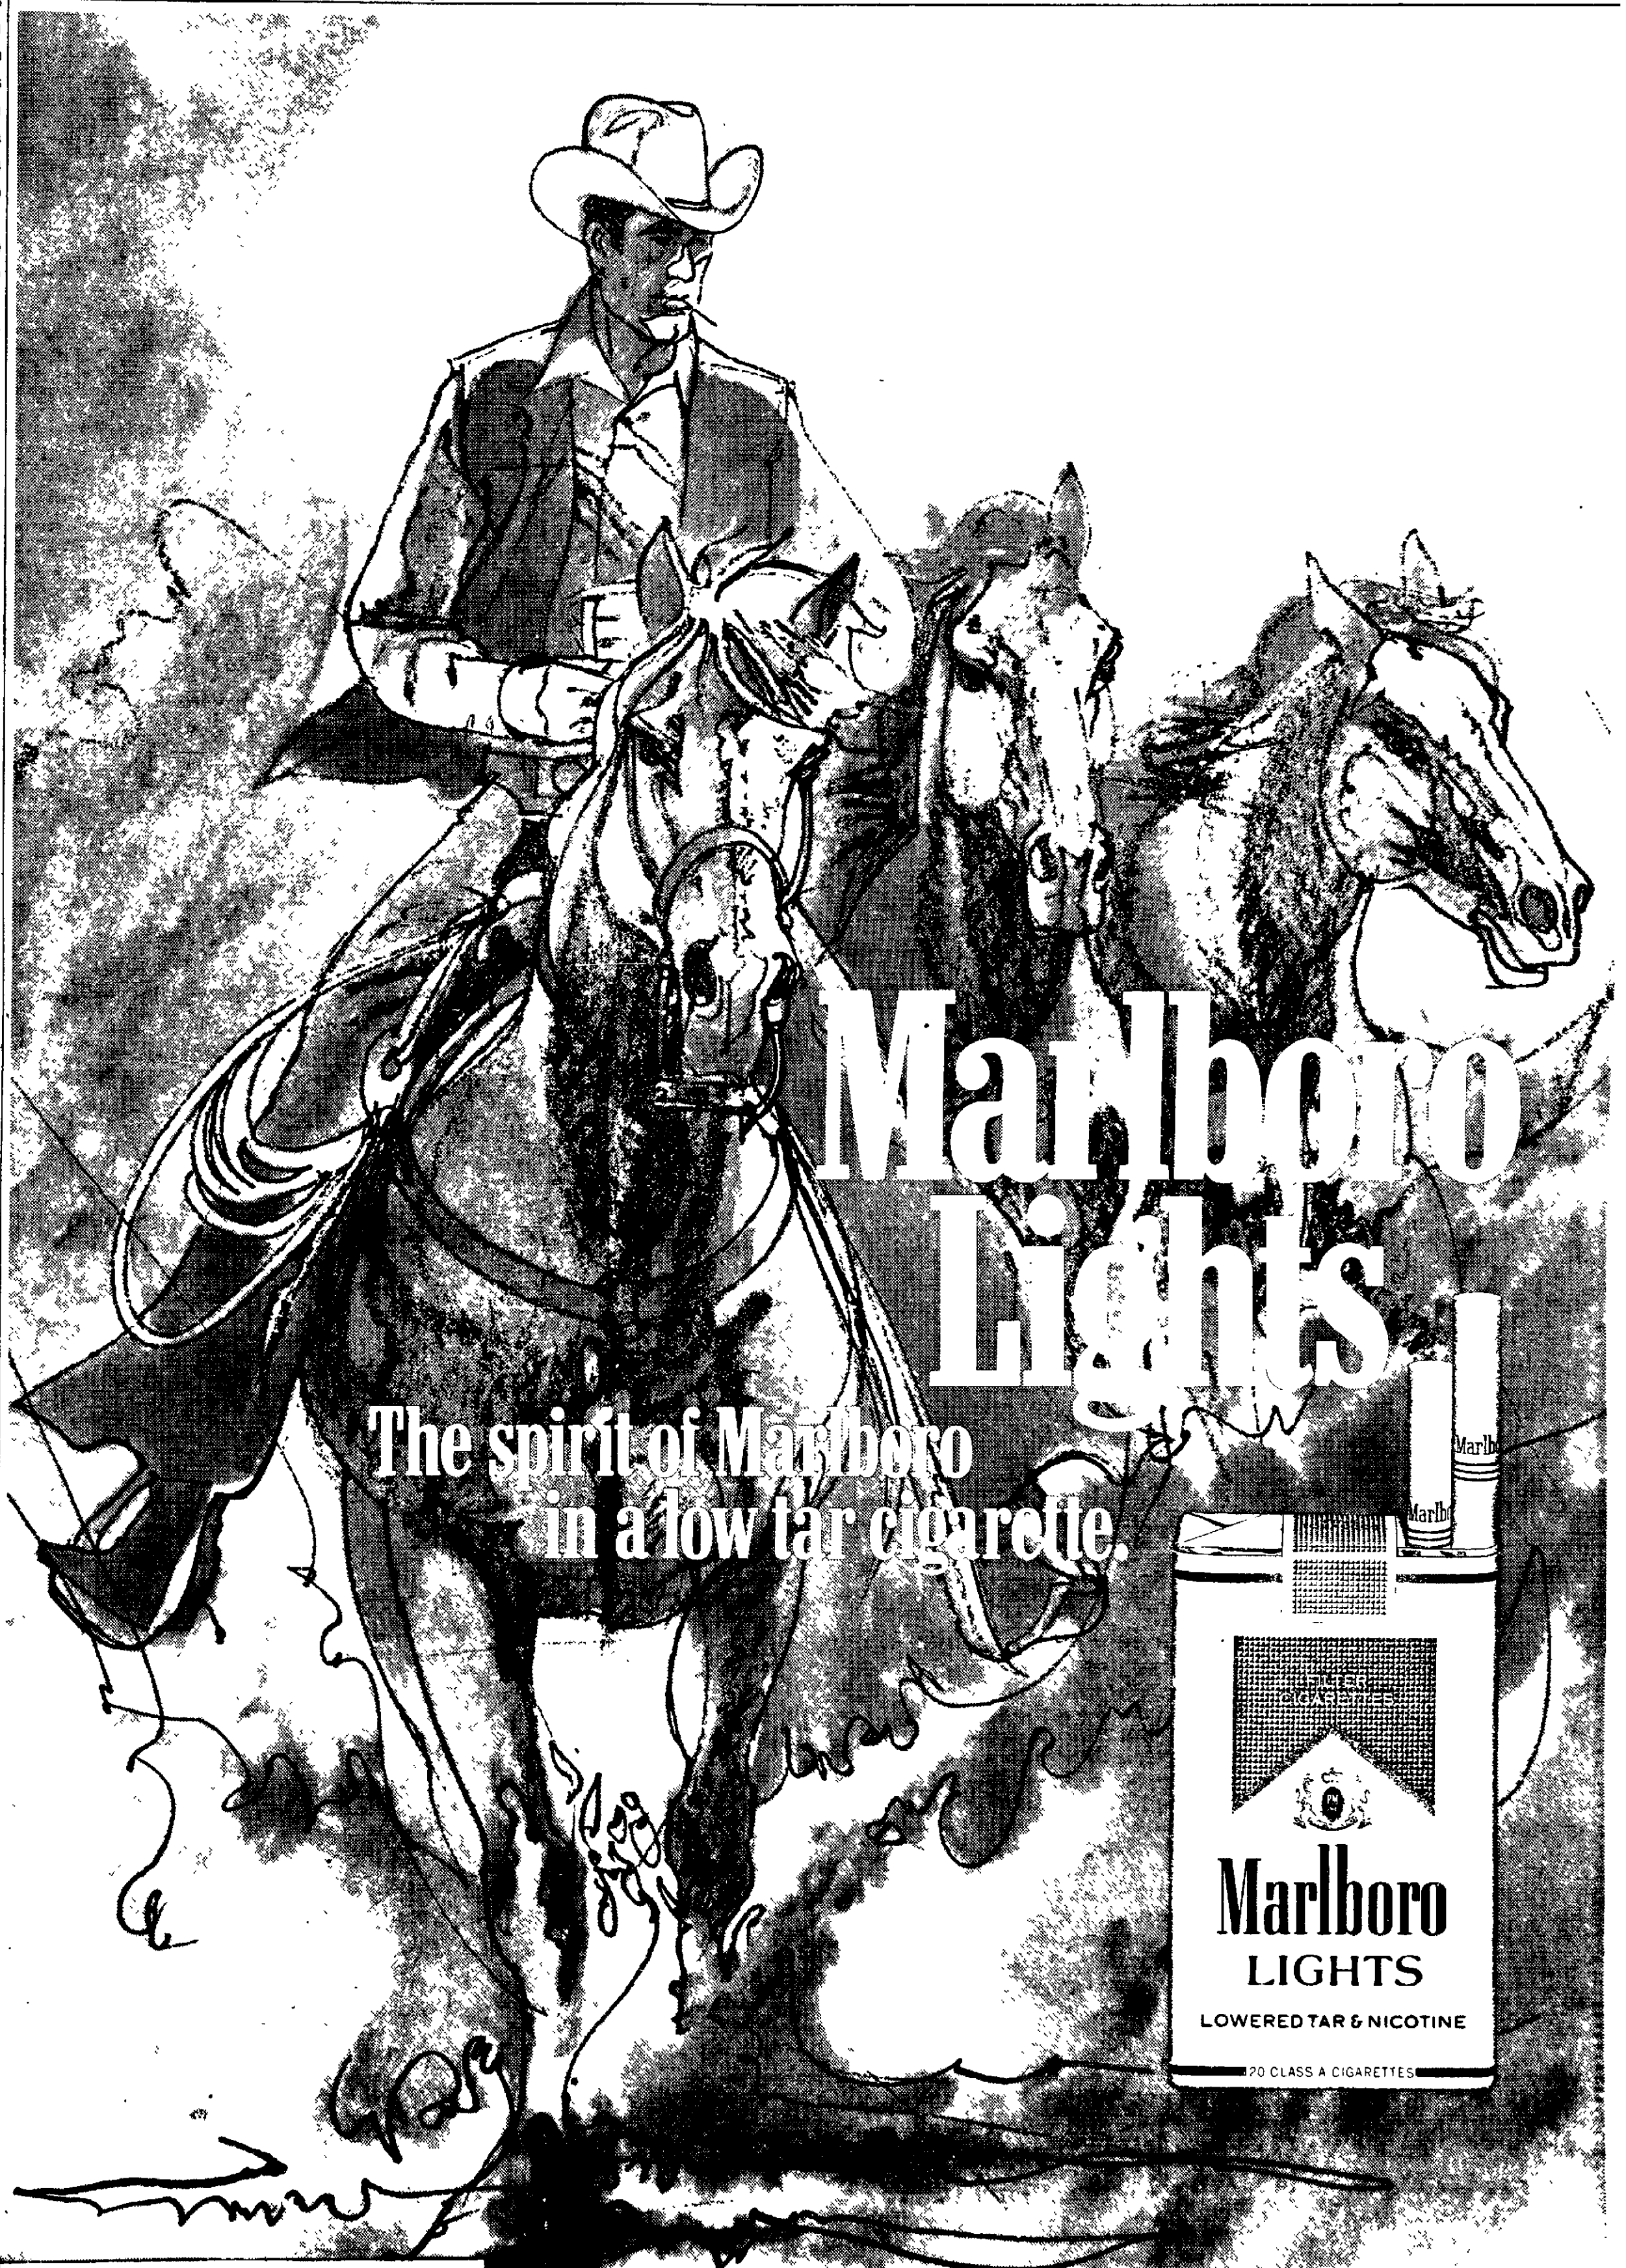

The computer system which will replace this time-consuming checking was designed for Hall County (Grand Island), but can be adapted to Lancaster County, Ms. Hahn said.

Approval to purchase the system for a price of $6,000 came from the county's data processing committee Monday afternoon. Ms. Hahn will present her idea to the County Board Tuesday.

The board has already approved $40,000 in revenue sharing funds for a study of the child support record system. "I'm hoping they spend some of the $40,000 on action rather than study," said Ms. Hahn.

Economic Indicators Again Show Decline

Washington (AP) — A government index reversed for March what had been the first solid gain since the recession started, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

But the slip was so slight that the index remained just ahead of where it was in January, after six consecutive months of decline amounting to 14%.

The March drop amounted to 0.5%. February's increase — originally reported as 1% — was revised downward to show a climb of 0.6%.

"The latest decline is not inconsistent with prospects of a recovery around midyear," said James L. Pate, the Commerce Department's top economist.

Pate said some confusing signals from various economic indicators are inevitable as the economy begins to turn around, and since the so-called composite of leading indicators has been among the most unreliable in the past year, it is particularly vulnerable.

In past recessions, the leading indicators index has anticipated recovery by as much as six months or turned up only when the rest of the economy was turning up, too.

The leading indicators' distortion by inflation became chronic early last year, however, when they continued going up when the economy was heading into a tailspin.

But what gave the latest movements a more solid foundation was a companion index compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston to compensate for inflation.

By the bank's deflated index the increases of early last year registered as declines, but even allowing for inflation, the February increase still amounted to 0.5%. The rise equaled March's decline by the same measure.

Moneyed, Brainy Meet To Discuss Inflation, Peace

Cesme, Turkey (UPI) — More than 100 of the brightest brains and biggest bank accounts in the West met at the 22nd annual Bilderberg Conference to discuss world inflation and Middle East peace prospects.

What is said and done at the three-day conference in this heavily-guarded Turkish hideaway will not be made public. The participants are bound to secrecy and even their spouses are forbidden to attend. Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands chaired the conference of politicians, bankers and industrialists from 17 nations at the walled Golden Dolphin Holiday Complex on the shore of the Aegean Sea.

Twenty-five Turkish policemen with submachine guns guarded the luxury vacation spot overlooking Cesme Bay, 45 miles west of Izmir. A police spokesman said another 50 plainclothes detectives strolled the grounds, which include a 540-room hotel, a private yacht marina, riding stables and an amphitheater.

16 The Lincoln Star Tuesday, April 29, 1975 Economic Indicators Again Show Decline

Washington (AP) — A government index reversed for March what had been the first solid gain since the recession started, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

But the slip was so slight that the index remained just ahead of where it was in January, after six consecutive months of decline amounting to 14%.

The March drop amounted to 0.5%. February's increase — originally reported as 1% — was revised downward to show a climb of 0.6%.

"The latest decline is not inconsistent with prospects of a recovery around midyear," said James L. Pate, the Commerce Department's top economist.

Pate said some confusing signals from various economic indicators are inevitable as the economy begins to turn around, and since the so-called composite of leading indicators has been among the most unreliable in the past year, it is particularly vulnerable.

In past recessions, the leading indicators index has anticipated recovery by as much as six months or turned up only when the rest of the economy was turning up, too.

The leading indicators' distortion by inflation became chronic early last year, however, when they continued going up when the economy was heading into a tailspin.

But what gave the latest movements a more solid foundation was a companion index compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston to compensate for inflation.

By the bank's deflated index the increases of early last year registered as declines, but even allowing for inflation, the February increase still amounted to 0.5%. The rise equalled March's decline by the same measure.

Moneyed, Brainy Meet To Discuss Inflation, Peace

Cesme, Turkey (UPI) — More than 100 of the brightest brains and biggest bank accounts in the West met at the 22nd annual Bilderberg Conference to discuss world inflation and Middle East peace prospects.

What is said and done at the three-day conference in this heavily-guarded Turkish hideaway will not be made public. The participants are bound to secrecy and even their spouses are forbidden to attend.

Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands chaired the conference of politicians, bankers and industrialists from 17 nations at the walled Golden Dolphin Holiday Complex on the shore of the Aegean Sea.

Twenty-five Turkish policemen with submachine guns guarded the luxury vacation spot overlooking Cesme Bay, 45 miles west of Izmir. A police spokesman said another 50 plainclothes detectives strolled the grounds, which include a 540-room hotel, a private yacht marina, riding stables and an amphitheater.

One-Game Suspension Could Prove Costly To Huskers

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The ineligibility of four Nebraska football players for next season's opening game against Louisiana State could create problems for them throughout the balance of the season.

That was coach Tom Osborne's opinion Monday as he announced the results of the NCAA ruling at a press conference in the NU athletic department lounge.

Declared ineligible for the Sept. 13 contest in NU's Memorial Stadium were quarterback Vince Ferragamo, defensive end Ray Phillips, safetyman Jimmy Burrow, and defensive tackle Dean Gissler.

The penalties were the result of trips to bowl games when the players weren't eligible to compete. The NCAA, in effect, said the money spent by the university for their trips constituted illegal financial aid.

The NCAA rules say players not eligible to participate shall not be taken to a bowl.

"The only problem is we know so far in advance they won't be available and we'll have advance planning," Osborne explained. "Anytime you lose four individuals who are either first string or very close to it, it is quite a blow to your squad and to the players in particular."

"We'll just have to prepare without them and hope we can do well. It will be a challenge to the other players and coaches to do an excellent job to overcome their ineligibility."

He said that probably the last ten days to two weeks before the opener the coaching staff isn't going to be able to spend much time with the four on the top two units.

"We have to prepare two players at each position to play against LSU," Osborne explained. "Even though the penalty is only one-eleventh of the season, on face value it doesn't seem to be a great price for an individual to pay. But, missing that first game certainly does put them at some disadvantage for the rest of the season."

Burrow and Phillips have been starters all spring on defense while Ferragamo has been in a fairly close battle for No. 1 quarterback. Gissler, though on the second string, has been playing fairly equal with Ron Pruitt at times.

In revealing the NCAA decision, athletic director Bob Devaney and Osborne said the Huskers were helped in their appeal by Big Eight Commissioner Chuck Neenas, who appeared with them and three of the players before the NCAA

Council. Ferragamo didn't go to the hearing at Kansas City last Wednesday because he had a physics examination

It was Ferragamo's appearance on national television at the bowl game in New Orleans that led to the penalties, even though neither he nor NU officials knew they were violating the rules

"I first knew of the infraction four days after the bowl when I received a call from Neenas," Osborne recalled. "We immediately turned in Phillips and subsequently checked the files and found Gissler and Burrow had gone to the Orange Bowl after the 1972 season when they also were ineligible. We turned ourselves in on all counts and thought this might be a mitigating factor, but apparently it wasn't."

The Big Eight, at its meeting in late February, gave Nebraska a public reprimand for the violation. Later, the league's athletic directors and faculty representatives unanimously joined NU in appealing the one-game ineligibility on the four players

Osborne completely exonerated the players, who he said were all disappointed and felt they were the victims of circumstances

"They're all basically very good people and I think they'll rise above the penalty," Osborne said. "Anybody involved in athletics hates to see players punished when they're apparently very innocent"

'It Should Have Been Me' — Osborne

Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne feels very bad about the loss of eligibility of four of his players for the first football game next season against Louisiana State.

"The players are totally blameless," he said Monday afternoon. "They had no knowledge of any wrong doing. We feel that they were totally innocent. I told that to three separate NCAA committees."

He said the only suggestion he made to those committees was that if an individual had to pay the price, "it should have been me because at least I had a rule book."

"The whole thing was unintentional, but the least guilty were the players, and yet they're the individuals who are paying the largest price. This is why we appealed the original decision."

He said he told the various committees that if they felt the matter was that serious and somebody has to pay a price, "I'm the one that should. Somehow they didn't see it that way."

The NCAA followed procedure of the past, which has been to make players in such cases ineligible for the next game. It is only unfortunate that the "next" game is against a potential toughie — Louisiana State. Fortunately, it isn't scheduled in Baton Rouge

Missing Letter

A big question in the whole affair is what happened to a bulletin sent out by the NCAA on Dec. 2 covering rules of bowl games and a request for an eligibility roster?

"We didn't get it," Osborne said. "Where it went I don't know, but it didn't come to my office. On Dec. 20, we received a letter which was a second request for the eligibility list, but they didn't send a list of rules."

Osborne said he was "madder than heck" and wanted to know what happened to the first request

"Unequivocally, flatly, we did not get that first request," he said. "No secretary, no coach, nobody would throw away an eligibility report to the NCAA. That's something you just don't do."

When the second request was returned, Osborne said Ferragamo and Phillips weren't listed because they weren't eligible to play. What the Husker coach didn't know was that players not eligible to play shall not be taken to a bowl.

"We can take players' wives, coaches' families, the band, and administrators," Osborne said. "Here are two kids taking their lumps on the scout team all fall and we can't take them. In a common sense way, it seems rather incongruous."

Out To Get Biggies?

Could Nebraska's status as a big-time football power have had anything to do with the original ruling of the three-man NCAA eligibility committee? No one will ever know, but it's a possibility.

That committee was composed of representatives from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of California at Riverside, and the University of Arizona. Only Arizona comes close to being a football power.

The committee made its decision after a conference telephone call on which Osborne participated. He said he pointed out to that group that if they want to "get" somebody "get me."

The committee said it had only power to rule on eligibility and declared Ferragamo and Phillips ineligible. Osborne noted that the two other NCAA groups he appealed to could have changed the decision, but chose not to do it.

That fact that Nebraska has been to 11 bowl games in the last 14 seasons makes a person think someone should know the rules by now. I'm sure the NCAA Manual will get a good going over now that this has happened.

And, since mail somehow can get misplaced very easily, perhaps the NCAA should send important documents by "registered" mail, requiring a signature that it has been received.

Hastings' Phelps Seeking Medical Career at NWU

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

State champion has a nice ring to it, but Doug Phelps has his sights set on a more prestigious title — Dr. Phelps.

Therefore, the Hastings multi-sport standout won't be faced with problems of indecision later this spring when it's time to mull over likely college scholarship offers.

Doug, twice state high jump champion and the state record-holder, believes he's cleared that hurdle. He plans to attend Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln this fall.

Phelps, a prime contender for Sunday Journal and Star prep Athlete of the Year honors, loves competitive athletics.

But, he insists, academics are his No. 1 priority.

"Sure, Wesleyan offers the kind of athletic advantages I'm looking for," says Phelps. "But the biggest reason I'm going there is the science department. I'm going to major in pre-med and Wesleyan is the No. 1 school in the state for that."

Phelps has the intellectual tools to meet the medical challenge. He ranks sixth academically in Hastings' senior class of 346.

He's used to getting A's in the classroom and in athletics. Though track has provided his most prominent athletic identity, Doug also started at quarterback two years for the Tiger football team and was a two-year regular at guard on the basketball team.

He earned all-Big 10 Conference acclaim in both sports. Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne has indicated an interest in his talents as a kicker.

"I'm not built for football," admits Phelps, who's 6-1 and 160

pounds. "But I want to try both basketball and track at Wesleyan."

"Maybe I'll wish I would have tried major college athletics," he allows, "but that's not really my desire. In track, you can compete and compare with most anyone. My parents think the same way. They support my decision 100 per cent."

Phelps also credits Hastings orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Eugene Peck, for his endorsement of Wesleyan.

"You might say I've been with Dr. Peck a lot. He's worked on my knee and ankle problems," Doug points out. "He's a Wesleyan graduate and I really admire him."

Phelps adds: "Like everyone else, I also like the attitude of coach (Woody) Greeno. I have no second thoughts about the type of coaching and support I'll get from him at Wesleyan."

Medicine, however, "is my main goal in life — my first choice over anything else. I know trying to study and compete in two sports in college is a big challenge."

"But," says Phelps, "I've found I have to be out for something. The function of my mind depends on physical exercise

"If I take a few days off from exercising, I get jumpy and nervous and can't relax or study as well," he relates.

Phelps, plagued with allergy problems and injuries throughout his prep athletic career, admits "I've never been very consistent."

But he's made a habit of producing his best at the right time. That was evident when he was a freshman and high jumped 6-5½ in his final junior high track competition in the East Big 10 meet at Grand Island.

As a sophomore, he leaped 6-7 at the state meet for the state record. At last year's state meet, his record was broken on Friday, but Doug came back on Saturday to jump 6-7½ to regain it.

So far this spring, Phelps has soared 6-8½ once — best jump in Nebraska prep history — and 6-8 twice. Such early consistency, Doug concedes, "scared me. I just hope things don't switch around this year. I like to say my best for last."

NWU's Karthausen Feels Pain Of Marathon Run

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
State College Writer

It's been just a week since the running of the Boston Marathon, and by now Cliff Karthausen is sure his 34th place finish in the 2,480 member field was no dream.

It didn't take long for him to distinguish dream from reality. He could tell by the soreness in his legs and his swollen left ankle

At one time, just over the halfway point in the 26-mile, 385-yard grand, the pain in Karthausen's ankle was so intense, he entertained thoughts of dropping out, briefly.

"Once I passed the 15-mile mark, there was no way I was going to drop out," the Nebraska Wesleyan senior said. "But I was really afraid I was going to damage it (the ankle)."

Karthausen actually hurt the ankle in practice two weeks prior to the marathon, but it never really bothered him under regular workouts. The stress of the pace and pavement during the Boston run made matters worse.

Karthausen tried running on the ankle Thursday, less than a week after the marathon. In the qualifying marathon at Omaha, Karthausen could hardly walk the entire first week.

In his Thursday workout, Karthausen completed about three miles before the pain forced him to walk back to school.

Fearing a stress fracture in the ankle, Karthausen went to the doctor and had x-rays taken to determine the extent of the injury.

The doctor reported the x-rays were O.K., except for some calcium deposits, and Karthausen has continued preparation for the remainder of the outdoor season.

"It's going to take awhile, but in the next couple of weeks I think I'll progress really quick," he said. "If it weren't for the ankle, I'd be all right now because the soreness is gone."

Karthausen, now running his regular seven mile workouts, has his immediate sights set on Saturday's Howard Wood Relays in Sioux Falls, S.D. in which coach Woody Greeno will take an abbreviated squad, with the rest going to the Doane Night Relays

Cliff Karthausen

But for the future, Karthausen has bigger goals, perhaps the Olympic trials

At age 22, Karthausen was the youngest finisher of the top 34 in the Boston run, with most ages ranging in the 26-30 year bracket

"Most guys are 26 to 28 when they reach their peak in marathon running," Karthausen said. "I'm only 22, so my potential is unlimited. I just depend on how hard you want to train."

The Olympic qualifying standards have been lowered to 2:25 and with Karthausen's time of 2:21:30, he's well under the minimum standards

"I'm almost five minutes under the qualifying time now," he said. "So I'd really like to try."

"My next goal is to break 2:20," he said. The next time I run, it'll probably scare me, because I'm probably only going to cut seconds off my future time instead of minutes.

Does Karthausen want to continue his pursuit of the marathon?

"When you're running, you think never again," he said. "But when you finish, your attitude changes completely. Hours later you think how great an experience it was, even with all the pain, and now I want to do it again."

Pocket Clipper Tops AK Card

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — John Maluvius worked for more than 25 years as racing secretary at Hollywood Park near Los Angeles. But even he is puzzled by the horses running in the early part of the Ak-Sar-Ben meeting.

That's why he changed the conditions of the $10,000 Inaugural Purse from an overnight handicap to an allowance race. That 5½-furlong scamper highlights Tuesday's opening-day of the 56-day Omaha meeting.

"The last two years, it's been real difficult to assign weights from horses running at Fonner Park, Sunland, Oaklawn, the Fair Grounds and Detroit, so I changed it to make it a little easier," said Maluvius, who is in his third year as Ak-Sar-Ben racing secretary. "It's best to open it up and let the horses weight themselves (according to winnings)."

"I was real pleased with the response of the horsemen — we had no trouble at all in filling the opening-day program," he continued. "I guess they're all dying to get their horses entered. Maluvius was also highly satisfied with the Nebraska-bred races, especially the sixth-race. That 5½-furlong race attracted 12 runners.

In the Inaugural, Jack Van Berg, bidding for his 17th straight Ak-Sar-Ben trainer's crown, may have the top candidate.

Van Berg has an entry of Calvin Klein's Pocket Clipper and W.E. Trotter II's Election Special, but Pocket Clipper has the most impressive record of the 14 3-year-olds entered.

The Zip Pocket colt won all four of his 1974 starts for earnings of $71,723. He scored two wins each at Ruidoso Downs and LaMesa in Raton, N.M.

His wire-to-wire efforts undoubtedly will give him a distinct advantage at Ak-Sar-Ben if he repeats those runs. He will carry 117 pounds.

Another half of an entry may have the best chance to stop the Van Berg bid for the Inaugural. Lyman Rollins has entered Rudarco and Irish.

Owned by G.W. McLoughlin, Rudarco compiled a 1974 record of five wins, five seconds and three thirds in 18 outings for winnings of $38,100. He is unplaced in two runs this season at Turf Paradise in Phoenix.

W.H. Wardlaw and B. Hopson's Bye Bye Battle, a Battle Joined filly, won two of three tests last year for earnings of $37,304. This season, she has captured one win, two seconds and one third in five runs at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark. and Sunland Park near El Paso, Tex.

The Kemling Brothers' Roman Zipper is hoping to atone for his two races at Ak-Sar-Ben last year.

After winning the juvenile championship one year ago at Fonner Park in Grand Island, the Zip Line colt finished fifth and sixth here after injuring himself in his initial Omaha appearance.

Still, Roman Zipper accounted for four wins in seven runs last year for earnings of $14,700. He has won two of three Fonner starts this spring, including a triumph in the second division of the $9,300 Fonner Park Special Stakes on April 11.

Completing the field are Mrs. H.J. Udoy's Men's Mine, J.W. Chatwell and J.E. Murrell's James Pere, J.W. Wright Jr.'s Hot Paque, D. Elliot and L. Black's Condo, E.C. Cashman's Red Drifter, Sarival Farms' Fasten, B.R. Evans' Zonic and J. Gardes' Pappa Hams.

Ak-Sar-Ben offers nine races each day with a 4 p.m. post time on weekday and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and holidays. Racing is set for 11 weeks on a Tuesday-through-Saturday schedule with a Monday card set for May 26.

Two $100,000-added races spark the most lucrative purse schedule in Nebraska history — a total purse of $3.4 million with nearly $800,000 in stakes and handicaps.

The Omaha Gold Cup Stakes, a mile and 1/16th chase for 3-year-olds on June 28, and the Cornhusker Handicap, a mile and 1/16th jaunt for 3-year-olds and up on July 5, are the meet's featured races.

Defending Champs Resume Winning

By BOB MOYER

Misty Lounge started out right where it left off last year as the Lincoln AAA Fast Pitch softball league began its 1975 season at Ballard Field Monday night.

Misty Lounge, which was Denny's Champion last season, captured the State AA Tournament last year by winning the close ones — and it was the same story Monday night as it defeated Pizza Hut (formerly Apothecary), 2-1. In the other opening night game, Dick Flynn's Buick defeated Walker Tire, 5-1, in 10 innings.

Pizza Hut struck first in the opener scoring on three Misty Lounge errors in the first inning.

But Misty Lounge bounced back, tying the game in the fourth inning on a home run by Rick Waldrop and winning it in the sixth when Mel Knopp singled, advanced to third on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dave Lebsack.

Jim Hakel, who pitched three scoreless innings in relief of starter Ken Grosenbach, earned the win, edging out Lew Lyons, who pitched well for Pizza Hut, allowing just four hits in the loss.

"We feel we have a little stronger team this year," Stan Kaltenberger, Misty manager said.

"We think we have a little better sticks this year although we didn't show it."

"But it's early in the year and it was cold out tonight," Kaltenberger added. "We've only had four practices, so I thought we played pretty good, considering."

Kaltenberger noted the team lost one starter from last year — third baseman Steve Butts, who moved to Omaha.

"We moved Roger Nolte from second base to third and got Dan Cook from Falstaff to play second base," Kaltenberger noted. "Cook played the outfield last year but he's played in the infield before." Also returning in the infield are Jerry Motz at first base and shortstop Jim Kraus, last year's outstanding defensive player in the State AA tournament.

Kaltenberger has his three outfielders — Steve Moser, Waldrop and Dave Smith — back and has added a fourth gardener in Knopp, who played with Apothecary last year. Lebsack returns as catcher.

"I was real impressed with Hakel tonight and our catcher Dave Lebsack was too," Kaltenberger noted. "He gives us three good pitchers along with Grosenbach and (Mark) Saulnier, who pitched for us last year." Hakel, from Weston, pitched briefly for the now-defunct Meginnis team last season.

As defending state champions,

Kaltenberger naturally feels his team should be in the thick of the city league pennant race. "I don't know who'll win, but we feel we have as good a chance as anybody," he noted.

In the nightcap, Dick Flynn's (formerly Roberts Dairy) battled new league entry Walker Tire to a scoreless draw through the first eight innings before Flynn's finally broke the ice in the top of the ninth on a single by Ron Melchar and a three-base error on Walker Tire's third baseman Roger Nelson that allowed Melchar to score.

Walker Tire bounced back though when pinch-hitter Rich Furasek singled home Doug Christ, who had reached on a walk after two were out.

Furasek's blow was the first hit for Walker Tire in the game after being blanked for eight innings by Harry Krasischke and Marv Razor. Flynn's put the game out of reach in the tenth, however, with a four-run outburst sparked by Monte Steenson's two-run single.

Huskers To Host Washburn

Tony Sharpe's Nebraska baseball team will seek to end a four-game losing streak Tuesday afternoon as the Huskers host Washburn University of Topeka, Kan., in a doubleheader beginning at 1:30 at the NU Diamond.

Nebraska dropped a three-game Big Eight series to Iowa State this past weekend and slipped from first to fourth in the conference race. The Huskers are now 5-4 in the Big Eight and 9-14 overall.

The Ichabods, a member of the Great Plains Conference, are 5-15 overall and maintain a team batting average of .199.

Leading the Huskers into the (twin bill are four .300+ hitters including shortstop Bryant Akisada (.327), third baseman Dick Anderson, (.323), second baseman Gary Healey (.313) and right fielder Norm Glismann (.307).

Nebraska will host Kansas State Friday and Saturday in a three-game series.

The Big Eight, at its meeting in late February, gave Nebraska a public reprimand for the violation. Later, the league's athletic directors and faculty representatives unanimously joined NU in appealing the one-game ineligibility on the four players.

Osborne completely exonerated the players, who he said were all disappointed and felt they were the victims of circumstances.

"They're all basically very good people and I think they'll rise above the penalty," Osborne said. "Anybody involved in athletics hates to see players punished when they're apparently very innocent."

'It Should Have Been Me' — Osborne

Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne feels very bad about the loss of eligibility of four of his players for the first football game next season against Louisiana State.

"The players are totally blameless," he said Monday afternoon. "They had no knowledge of any wrong doing. We feel that they were totally innocent. I told that to three separate NCAA committees."

He said the only suggestion he made to those committees was that if an individual had to pay the price, "it should have been me because at least I had a rule book."

"The whole thing was unintentional, but the least guilty were the players, and yet they're the individuals who are paying the largest price. This is why we appealed the original decision."

He said he told the various committees that if they felt the matter was that serious and somebody has to pay a price, "I'm the one that should. Somehow they didn't see it that way."

The NCAA followed procedure of the past, which has been to make players in such cases ineligible for the next game. It is only unfortunate that the "next" game is against a potential toughie — Louisiana State. Fortunately, it isn't scheduled in Baton Rouge.

Missing Letter

A big question in the whole affair is what happened to a bulletin sent out by the NCAA on Dec. 2 covering rules of bowl games and a request for an eligibility roster?

"We didn't get it," Osborne said. "Where it went I don't know, but it didn't come to my office. On Dec. 20, we received a letter which was a second request for the eligibility list, but they didn't send a list of rules."

Osborne said he was "madder than heck" and wanted to know what happened to the first request.

"Unequivocally, flatly, we did not get that first request," he said. "No secretary, no coach, nobody would throw away an eligibility report to the NCAA. That's something you just don't do."

When the second request was returned, Osborne said Ferragamo and Phillips weren't listed because they weren't eligible to play. What the Husker coach didn't know was that players not eligible to play shall not be taken to a bowl.

"We can take players' wives, coaches' families, the band, and administrators," Osborne said. "Here are two kids taking their lumps on the scout team all fall and we can't take them. In a common sense way, it seems rather incongruous."

Out To Get Biggies?

Could Nebraska's status as a big-time football power have had anything to do with the original ruling of the three-man NCAA eligibility committee? No one will ever know, but it's a possibility.

That committee was composed of representatives from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of California at Riverside, and the University of Arizona. Only Arizona comes close to being a football power.

The committee made its decision after a conference telephone call on which Osborne participated. He said he pointed out to that group that if they want to "get" somebody "get me."

The committee said it had only power to rule on eligibility and declared Ferragamo and Phillips ineligible. Osborne noted that the two other NCAA groups he appealed to could have changed the decision, but chose not to do it.

That fact that Nebraska has been to 11 bowl games in the last 14 seasons makes a person think someone should know the rules by now. I'm sure the NCAA Manual will get a good going over now that this has happened.

And, since mail somehow can get misplaced very easily, perhaps the NCAA should send important documents by "registered" mail, requiring a signature that it has been received.

Hastings' Phelps Seeking Medical Career at NWU

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

State champion has a nice ring to it, but Doug Phelps has his sights set on a more prestigious title — Dr. Phelps.

Therefore, the Hastings multi-sport standout won't be faced with problems of indecision later this spring when it's time to mull over likely college scholarship offers.

Doug, twice state high jump champion and the state record-holder, believes he's cleared that hurdle. He plans to attend Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln this fall.

Phelps, a prime contender for Sunday Journal and Star prep Athlete of the Year honors, loves competitive athletics.

But, he insists, academics are his No. 1 priority.

"Sure, Wesleyan offers the kind of athletic advantages I'm looking for," says Phelps, "but the biggest reason I'm going there is the science department. I'm going to major in pre-med and Wesleyan is the No. 1 school in the state for that."

Phelps has the intellectual tools to meet the medical challenge. He ranks sixth academically in Hastings' senior class of 346.

He's used to getting A's in the classroom and in athletics. Though track has provided his most prominent athletic identity, Doug also started at quarterback two years for the Tiger football team and was a two-year regular at guard on the basketball team.

He earned all-Big 10 Conference acclaim in both sports. Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne has indicated an interest in his talents as a kicker.

"I'm not built for football," admits Phelps, who's 6-1 and 160

pounds. "But I want to try both basketball and track at Wesleyan."

"Maybe I'll wish I would have tried major college athletics," he allows, "but that's not really my desire. In track, you can compete and compare with most anyone. My parents think the same way. They support my decision 100 per cent."

Phelps also credits Hastings orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Eugene Peck, for his endorsement of Wesleyan.

"You might say I've been with Dr. Peck a lot. He's worked on my knee and ankle problems," Doug points out. "He's a Wesleyan graduate and I really admire him."

Phelps adds: "Like everyone else, I also like the attitude of coach (Woody) Greeno. I have no second thoughts about the type of coaching and support I'll get from him at Wesleyan."

Medicine, however, "is my main goal in life — my first choice over anything else. I know trying to study and compete in two sports in college is a big challenge."

"But," says Phelps, "I've found I have to be out for something. The function of my mind depends on physical exercise."

"If I take a few days off from exercising, I get jumpy and nervous and can't relax or study as well," he relates.

Phelps, plagued with allergy problems and injuries throughout his prep athletic career, admits "I've never been very consistent."

But he's made a habit of producing his best at the right time. That was evident when he was a freshman and high jumped 6-5 1/4 in his final junior high track competition in the East Big 10 meet at Grand Island.

As a sophomore, he leaped 6-7 at the state meet for the state record. At last year's state meet, his record was broken on Friday, but Doug came back on Saturday to jump 6-7 1/2 to regain it.

So far this spring, Phelps has soared 6-8 1/2 once — best jump in Nebraska prep history — and 6-8 twice. Such early consistency, Doug concedes, "scared me. I just hope things don't switch around this year. I like to save my best for last."

NWU's Karthausers Feels Pain Of Marathon Run

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
State College Writer

It's been just a week since the running of the Boston Marathon, and by now Cliff Karthausers is sure his 34th place finish in the 2,480 member field was no dream.

It didn't take long for him to distinguish dream from reality. He could tell by the soreness in his legs and his swollen left ankle.

At one time, just over the halfway point in the 26-mile, 385-yard grained, the pain in Karthausers' ankle was so intense, he entertained thoughts of dropping out, briefly.

"Once I passed the 15-mile mark, there was no way I was going to drop out," the Nebraska Wesleyan senior said. "But I was really afraid I was going to damage it (the ankle)."

Karthausers actually hurt the ankle in practice two weeks prior to the marathon, but it never really bothered him under regular workouts. The stress of the pace and pavement during the Boston run made matters worse.

Karthausers tried running on the ankle Thursday, less than a week after the marathon. In the qualifying marathon at Omaha, Karthausers could hardly walk the entire first week.

In his Thursday workout, Karthausers completed about three miles before the pain forced him to walk back to school.

Fearing a stress fracture in the ankle, Karthausers went to the doctor and had x-rays taken to determine the extent of the injury.

The doctor reported the x-rays were O.K., except for some calcium deposits, and Karthausers has continued preparation for the remainder of the outdoor season.

"It's going to take awhile, but in the next couple of weeks I think I'll progress really quick," he said. "If it weren't for the ankle, I'd be all right now because the soreness is gone."

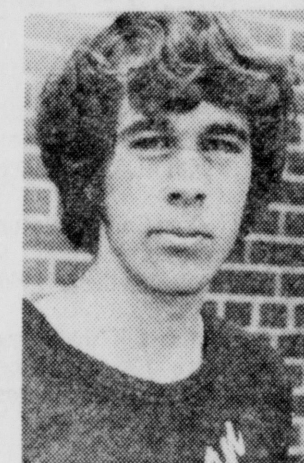

Karthausers, now running his regular seven mile workouts, has his immediate sights set on Saturday's Howard Wood Relays in Sioux Falls, S.D. in which coach Woody Greeno will take an abbreviated squad, with the rest going to the Doane Night Relays.

Cliff Karthausers

But for the future, Karthausers has bigger goals, perhaps the olympic trials.

At age 22, Karthausers was the youngest finisher of the top 34 in the Boston run, with most ages ranging in the 26-30 year bracket.

"Most guys are 26 to 28 when they reach their peak in marathon running," Karthausers said. "I'm only 22, so my potential is unlimited. I just depend on how hard you want to train."

The Olympic qualifying standards have been lowered to 2:25 and with Karthausers' time of 2:21.30, he's well under the minimum standards.

"I'm almost five minutes under the qualifying time now," he said, "so I'd really like to try. My next goal is to break 2:20," he said. "The next time I run, I'll probably scare me, because I'm probably only going to cut seconds off my future time instead of minutes."

Does Karthausers want to continue his pursuit of the marathon?

"When you're running, you think never again," he said. "But when you finish, your attitude changes completely. Hours later you think how great an experience it was, even with all the pain, and now I want to do it again."

Pocket Clipper Tops AK Card

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — John Maluvius worked for more than 25 years as racing secretary at Hollywood Park near Los Angeles. But even he is puzzled by the horses running in the early part of the Ak-Sar-Ben meeting.

That's why he changed the conditions of the $10,000 Inaugural Purse from an overnight handicap to an allowance race. That 5 1/2-furlong scamper highlights Tuesday's opening-day of the 56-day Omaha meeting.

"The last two years, it's been real difficult to assign weights from horses running at Fonner Park, Sunland, Oaklawn, the Fair Grounds and Detroit, so I changed it to make it a little easier," said Maluvius, who is in his third year as Ak-Sar-Ben racing secretary. "It's best to open it up and let the horses weight themselves (according to winnings)."

"I was real pleased with the response of the horsemen — we had no trouble at all in filling the opening-day program," he continued. "I guess they're all dying to get their horses entered."

Maluvius was also highly satisfied with the Nebraska-bred races, especially the sixth-race. That 5 1/2-furlong race attracted 12 runners.

In the Inaugural, Jack Van Berg, bidding for his 17th straight Ak-Sar-Ben trainer's crown, may have the top candidate.

Van Berg has an entry of Calvin Klein's Pocket Clipper and W.E. Trotter II's Election Special, but Pocket Clipper has the most impressive record of the 14 3-year-olds entered.

The Zip Pocket colt won all four of his 1974 starts for earnings of $71,723. He scored two wins each at Ruidoso Downs and LaMesa in Raton, N.M.

His wire-to-wire efforts undoubtedly will give him a distinct advantage at Ak-Sar-Ben if he repeats those runs. He will carry 117 pounds.

Another half of an entry may have the best chance to stop the Van Berg bid for the Inaugural. Lyman Rollins has entered Rudarco and Irish.

Owned by G.W. McLoughlin, Rudarco compiled a 1974 record of five wins, five seconds and three thirds in 18 outings for winnings of $38,100. He is unplaced in two runs this season at Turf Paradise in Phoenix.

W.H. Wardlaw and B. Hopson's Bye Bye Battle, a Battle Joined filly, won two of three tests last year for earnings of $37,304. This season, she has captured one win, two seconds and one third in five runs at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark. and Sunland Park near El Paso, Tex.

The Kemling Brothers' Roman Zipper is hoping to atone for his two races at Ak-Sar-Ben last year.

After winning the juvenile championship one year ago at Fonner Park in Grand Island, the Zip Line colt finished fifth and sixth here after injuring himself in his initial Omaha appearance.

Still, Roman Zipper accounted for four wins in seven runs last year for earnings of $14,700. He has won two of three Fonner starts this spring, including a triumph in the second division of the $9,300 Fonner Park Special Stakes on April 11.

Completing the field are Mrs. H.J. Udolji's Men' Mine, J.W. Chatwell and J.E. Murrell's James Pere, J.W. Wright Jr.'s Hot Paque, D. Elliot and L. Black's Condo, E.C. Cashman's Red Drifter, Sarival Farms' Fasten, B.R. Evans' Zonic and J. Gardes' Pappa Hans.

Ak-Sar-Ben offers nine races each day with a 4 p.m. post time on weekday and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and holidays. Racing is set for 11 weeks on a Tuesday-through-Saturday schedule with a Monday card set for May 26.

Two $100,000-added races spark the most lucrative purse schedule in Nebraska history — a total purse of $3.4 million with nearly $800,000 in stakes and handicaps.

The Omaha Gold Cup Stakes, a mile and 1/16th chase for 3-year-olds on June 28, and the Cornhusker Handicap, a mile and 1/16th jaunt for 3-year-olds and up on July 5, are the meet's featured races.

Defending Champs Resume Winning

By BOB MOYER

Misty Lounge started out right where it left off last year as the Lincoln AAA Fast Pitch softball league began its 1975 season at Ballard Field Monday night.

Misty Lounge, which was Denny's Champlin last season, captured the State AA Tournament last year by winning the close ones — and it was the same story Monday night as it defeated Pizza Hut (formerly Apothecary), 2-1. In the other opening night game, Dick Flynn's Buick defeated Walker Tire, 5-1, in 10 innings.

Pizza Hut struck first in the opener scoring

on three Misty Lounge errors in the first inning.

But Misty Lounge bounced back, tying the game in the fourth inning on a home run by Rick Waldrop and winning it in the sixth when Mel Knopp singled, advanced to third on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dave Lebsack.

Jim Hakel, who pitched three scoreless innings in relief of starter Ken Grosebach, earned the win, edging out Lew Lyons, who pitched well for Pizza Hut, allowing just four hits in the loss.

"We feel we have a little stronger team this year," Stan Kaltenberger, Misty manager said.

"We think we have a little better sticks this year although we didn't show it."

"But it's early in the year and it was cold out tonight," Kaltenberger added. "We've only had four practices, so I thought we played pretty good, considering."

Kaltenberger noted the team lost one starter from last year — third baseman Steve Butts, who moved to Omaha.

"We moved Roger Nolte from second base to third and got Dan Cook from Fallstaff to play second base," Kaltenberger noted. "Cook played the outfield last year but he's played in the infield before." Also returning in the infield are Jerry Motz at first base and shortstop Jim Kraus, last year's outstanding defensive player in the State AA tournament.

Kaltenberger has his three outfielders — Steve Moser, Waldrop and Dave Smith — back and has added a fourth gardener in Knopp, who played with Apothecary last year. Lebsack returns as catcher.

"I was real impressed with Hakel tonight and our catcher Dave Lebsack was too," Kaltenberger noted. "He gives us three good pitchers along with Grosebach and (Mark) Saulnier, who pitched for us last year." Hakel, from Weston, pitched briefly for the now-defunct Meginnis team last season.

Tony Sharpe's Nebraska baseball team will seek to end a four-game losing streak Tuesday afternoon as the Huskers host Washburn University of Topeka, Kan., in a doubleheader beginning at 1:30 at the NU Diamond.

Nebraska dropped a three-game Big Eight series to Iowa State this past weekend and slipped from first to fourth in

The Ichadobds, a member of the Great Plains Conference, are 5-15 overall and maintain a team batting average of .199.

Lawrence O'Brien, former postmaster general and ex-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has been selected to replace retiring Walter Kennedy as commissioner of the National Basketball Association. Kennedy announced his resignation nearly two years ago.

Tim Osborne from Mervin Tech in Baltimore, Md., has signed a national letter-of-intent to play basketball at Missouri. Reserve guard Phil Smith of the Golden State Warriors, will miss the second game of the playoff series with Chicago because of an eye injury.

Emil Liston, founder of the NAIA, was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame. Robert Vandivier and Joseph Brennan also will be honored. Commissioner Walter Kennedy received the John W. Bunn Award for his "contribution to basketball and sports."

Shannon Reading, an assistant coach at North Texas State, has been named head basketball coach at Baker University.

BASEBALL

Dick Allen was placed on waivers by the Atlanta Braves and the Philadelphia Phillies have claimed the slugger.

The New York Mets sold catcher Jerry Moses to the San Diego Padres for an unspecified amount of cash.

Dave Nelson, Texas Ranger second baseman, underwent surgery to remove a bone spur in his ankle.

The Equitable Family Tennis Challenge offers trophies and a chance to play at Forest Hills during the U.S. Open.

Chris Evert, who set the women's tennis earnings record of $261,460, has already earned $208,550 in American tournaments this year and seems well on her way to breaking her own record. Martina Navratilova, Evert's latest victim, is the only other woman to go over the $100,000 mark with earnings of $115,163.

The engagement of Australian Evonne Goolagong was announced. Goolagong will marry Roger Cawley.

GOLF

Jack Nicklaus returned to the top of the money-earnings list with his fourth-place finish in the Tournament of Champions. Nicklaus moved ahead of Johnny Miller with $155,188. Miller was a 1975 total of $153,889.

Johnny Miller has entered the Byron Nelson Golf Classic for the first time since 1971, when he tied for 58th.

Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer led the field in the $150,000 Houston Open.

Mike Hill, an eight-year veteran of the golf tour, was hospitalized after undergoing surgery on his right leg and will be out of action for an indefinite period. Hill is Dave Hill's younger brother.

Detroit Defeats Baltimore

Baltimore

By The Associated Press

Aurelio Rodriguez' bases-loaded walk and Gary Sutherland's two-run single in the ninth inning boosted the Detroit Tigers to a 5-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Monday night.

In the only other American League night action, the New York Yankees beat Cleveland 6-1 and Kansas City defeated Chicago 7-5.

Bill Freehan singled for Detroit to open the ninth against Mike Cuellar, John Knox ran for him. Leon Roberts singled Knox to second, then Dan Meyer singled to left. But Al Bumbry's throw home nailed Knox.

On the play, the runners moved to second and third. Tom Veryzer was intentionally walked to load the bases, then Rodriguez drew a walk on a full-count pitch, forcing home Roberts and chasing Cuellar. Dave Johnson struck out Gates Brown before Sutherland singled off third baseman Brooks Robinson's glove.

The victory extended the Tigers' winning streak to four games and kept them first in the American League East. Don Baylor hit a homer for Baltimore and Willie Horton had one for Detroit.

Alex Johnson's a two-run triple highlighted the Yankees' four-run first inning and Rudy May pitched a four-hitter to beat the Indians.

Roy White, Elliott Maddox and Thurman Munson singled for the first run off Fritz Peterson. Johnson tripled to right-center and Graig Nettles delivered the fourth run with a sacrifice fly. Johnson also hit a sacrifice fly for the Yanks' final run in the seventh. John Ellis homered for Cleveland.

Harmon Killebrew's fourth home run of the season broke a sixth-inning tie and Hal McRae slammed a bases-loaded triple in the seventh to lead Kansas City past Wilbur Wood and the White Sox.

In Monday's only National League action, Houston beat San Diego 4-1 and Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 4-3 in night action.

Bob Watson broke a sixth-inning tie with a two-run single to give Houston its victory over the Padres. Dave Roberts scattered seven hits, losing his shutout on Dave Winfield's sixth homer of the season in the fourth inning.

Manny Mota's two-run single capped a three-run eighth inning that vaulted Los Angeles past Atlanta, extended the Dodgers' winning string to five games.

Gilmore Sparks Colonels

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

The Kentucky Colonels, with Artis Gilmore scoring 39 points, rolled over the Spirits of St. Louis 123-103 Monday night to win the Eastern Division playoff championship four games to one.

The Colonels will meet the winner of the Indiana-Denver series which Indiana leads 3-2.

Dan Issel hit for 28 and Louie Dampier added 17 as the Colonels pulverized the Spirits' defense. St. Louis fell apart early in the fourth period, despite an outstanding performance by Marvin Barnes, who pitched in 35 points.

Trailing him was teammate Maurice Lucas with 19, but Lucas got into foul trouble early in the game and sat out a good part of it.

When play began in the fourth period, Kentucky was ahead 94-82 and Wil Jones added two more points for the Colonels before Lucas hit. Barnes connected from the side to bring St. Louis within 10 points.

Kentucky, which completely dominated the boards, now get their third shot at the title which has eluded them since they joined the ABA.

At halftime Kentucky was ahead 57-46, mainly on the play of Gilmore and Issel.

Detroit Defeats Baltimore

By The Associated Press

Aurelio Rodriguez' bases-loaded walk and Gary Sutherland's two-run single in the ninth inning boosted the Detroit Tigers to a 5-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Monday night.

In the only other American League night action, the New York Yankees beat Cleveland 6-1 and Kansas City defeated Chicago 7-5.

Bill Freehan singled for Detroit to open the ninth against Mike Cuellar. John Knox ran for him, Leon Roberts singled Knox to second, then Dan Meyer singled to left. But Al Bumbry's throw home nailed Knox.

On the play, the runners moved to second and third. Tom Verzer was intentionally walked to load the bases, then Rodriguez drew a walk on a full-count pitch, forcing home Roberts and chasing Cuellar. Dave Johnson struck out Gates Brown before Sutherland singled off third baseman Brooks Robinson's glove.

The victory extended the Tigers' winning streak to four games and kept them first in the American League East. Don Baylor hit a homer for Baltimore and Willie Horton had one for Detroit.

Alex Johnson's a two-run triple highlighted the Yankees' four-run first inning and Rudy May pitched a four-hitter to beat the Indians.

Roy White, Elliott Maddox and Thurman Munson singled for the first run off Fritz Peterson, Johnson tripled to right-center and Graig Nettles delivered the fourth run with a sacrifice fly. Johnson also hit a sacrifice fly for the Yanks' final run in the seventh. John Ellis homered for Cleveland.

Harmon Killebrew's fourth home run of the season broke a sixth-inning tie and Hal McRae slammed a bases-loaded triple in the seventh to lead Kansas City past Wilbur Wood and the White Sox.

In Monday's only National League action, Houston beat San Diego 4-1 and Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 4-3 in night action.

Bob Watson broke a sixth-inning tie with a two-run single to give Houston its victory over the Padres. Dave Roberts scattered seven hits, losing his shutout on Dave Winfield's sixth homer of the season in the fourth inning.

Manny Mota's two-run single capped a three-run eighth inning that vaulted Los Angeles past Atlanta, extended the Dodgers' winning string to five games.

Gilmore Sparks Colonels

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Colonels, with Art Gilmore scoring 29 points, rolled over the Spirits of St. Louis 123-103 Monday night to win the Eastern Division playoff championship four games to one.

The Colonels will meet the winner of the Indiana-Denver series which Indiana leads 3-2.

Dan Issel hit for 28 and Louie Dampier added 17 as the Colonels pulverized the Spirits' defense. St. Louis fell apart early in the fourth period, despite an outstanding performance by Marvin Barnes, who pitched in 35 points.

Trailing him was teammate Maurice Lucas with 19, but Lucas got into foul trouble early in the game and sat out a good part of it.

When play began in the fourth period, Kentucky was ahead 94-82 and Wil Jones added two more points for the Colonels before Lucas hit. Barnes connected from the side to bring St. Louis within 10 points.

Kentucky, which completely dominated the boards, now get their third shot at the title which has eluded them since they joined the ABA.

At halftime Kentucky was ahead 57-48, mainly on the play of Gilmore and Issel.

Split Racing Gets First Round OK

By United Press International
The Unicameral gave first round approval Monday afternoon to a bill which would allow the State Fair Board to split next year's Fairgrounds racing season between Omaha and Columbus.

The bill, LB599, was sent over its first floor hurdle on a 29-5 count.

Sen. J. W. Burbach of Crofton, the bill's sponsor, said the purpose of the bill was to clear away any legal barriers to such an arrangement so that the Fairgrounds track could be rebuilt and the 25-day season retained at least on paper to satisfy bond company requirements during construction.

Under the agreement, 15 days would be scheduled at Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben track and 10 days of the Fairgrounds season would be held at Columbus.

But the measure drew opposition from Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha who said he was objecting to horse racing and gambling in general.

"I think racing ought to be abolished," he told his colleagues.

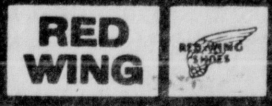

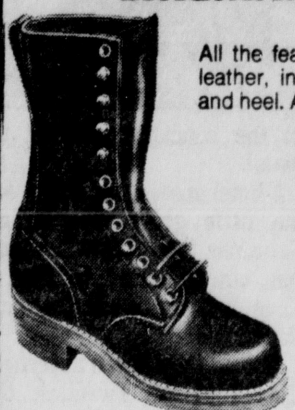

Sen. J. W. Burbach of Crofton, the bill's sponsor, said the purpose of the bill was to clear away any legal barriers to such an arrangement so that the Fairgrounds track could be rebuilt and the 25-day season retained at least on paper to satisfy bond company requirements during construction.

POSTCARD

The rum-and-sunshine maitai goes for $3 a pop at Waikiki. But brudda, I didn't come to Hawaii to drink cooking sherry.

It's a fruity drink. A lot of lemon juice in a BIG old-fashioned glass. The glass is packed solid with crushed ice, and this makes the mighty maitai profitable.

Two jiggers of rum go in the glass. And a dark Jamaica rum is floating on top.

It is decorated with a wedge of pineapple, a cherry. A stick of sugar cane lifts its periscope from this rummy sea. A lavender vanda orchid sails toward an island of mint.

Some island bartenders shade it with a miniature Japanese parasol.

With the tropical sunset framed by coconut trees and this exotic thing in front of you, you know "lucky come Hawaii."

"Conservationists in Hawaii have double the energy of your mainland people," said man who builds condominiums. "If we construct a condominium on a beach front — everybody wants to be on a beach — we have to build it sideways. So it doesn't obstruct the view."

"Then we have local people who object to 24 floors height."

"Let me tell you there are tourists who like it. Man arrives from the East Coast. He looks out the 24th floor window: 'Look down there, Mother. That's Hawaii.'"

"He turns on the air-conditioner to the temperature he wants Hawaii to be. Calls room service — 'we only live once' — and orders a maitai. He's got the aloha spirit made."

The hula girl made Hawaii. The little brown girl in the little grass shack.

POSTCARD

The rum-and-sunshine maitai goes for $3 a pop at Waikiki. But brudda, I didn't come to Hawaii to drink cooking sherry.

It's a fruity drink. A lot of lemon juice in a BIG old-fashioned glass. The glass is packed solid with crushed ice, and this makes the mighty maitai profitable.

Two jiggers of rum go in the glass. And a dark Jamaica rum is floating on top.

It is decorated with a wedge of pineapple, a cherry. A stick of sugar cane lifts its periscope from this rummy sea. A lavender vanda orchid sails toward an island of mint.

Some island bartenders shade it with a miniature Japanese parasol.

With the tropical sunset framed by coconut trees and this exotic thing in front of you, you know "lucky come Hawaii."

"Conservationists in Hawaii have double the energy of your mainland people," said man who builds condominiums. "If we construct a condominium on a beach front — everybody wants to be on a beach — we have to build it sideways. So it doesn't obstruct the view."

"Then we have local people who object to 24 floors height."

"Let me tell you there are tourists who like it. Man arrives from the East Coast. He looks out the 24th floor window: 'Look down there, Mother. That's Hawaii.'"

"He turns on the air-conditioner to the temperature he wants Hawaii to be. Calls room service — 'we only live once' — and orders a maitai. He's got the aloha spirit made."

The hula girl made Hawaii. The little brown girl in the little grass shack.

Precaution Taken

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Authorities have called up police and troop reinforcements as a precaution against the threat of violence Monday on the 10th anniversary of the landing of U.S. troops in the Dominican Republic, then in the grip of a civil war.

A hotel press agent said: "And the little grass skirt is not Hawaiian. One of Hawaii's kings sent ambassadors to Samoa. They brought back the grass skirt."

"When they began advertising Hawaii in the Twenties, they sent out pictures of girls doing the hula wearing a grass skirt."

"We still send them out. The message to people snowbound on the mainland is plain: In Hawaii it's warm enough in winter to go around in nothing but grass."

The hula girl is never suggestive of anything more than warm weather.

"No topos," said the hotel man. "The tourist who comes here brings his wife. She's not about to visit a place that features topos coconut dipped muffins."

"We don't even send out pix of chicks in bikinis."

"The hula girl is pure as Mom's banana cream pie."

The hotel shows put out a clean hula show. (In the days of Hawaiian royalty, the hula was a suggestive thing. Some were even slapstick blue material.)

Captain James Cook, the first man to discover Hawaii, discovered the hula at the same time.

He anchored off the island of Kauai in 1778. Hawaiians paddled out and Cook logged: "Some of the natives repeated a long prayer before they came aboard; and others afterwards sang and made motions with their hands."

All hotels give free hula lessons. When we used to come over on the steamship Lurline, we got hula lessons on deck. Arrived in the sugar islands limber as a broken bed spring.

"We give a good value," said the hotel man. "All year that woman has been figuring the grocery bills. Trying to make hamburger stretch farther."

"Five hours on a plane and she's on the beach at Waikiki. An instant hula dancer. Making hand motions like fish swimming in Hawaii."

HUD OKs —Staying Ahead— Grant Of Combination Deal Offered $486,000 To High Income Investors

Almost $500,000 in federal community development funds will be used to improve Lincoln neighborhoods over the next year.

Less than a month after the application was submitted, a $486,000 grant, much of it earmarked for the Clinton neighborhood, was approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Specific improvements are planned for the Clinton, Malone, West Lincoln and Havelock neighborhoods, but other neighborhoods can apply for funding of community improvement projects through the grant, said Community Development Director Leo Sherer.

The grant will also pay for three positions: a housing rehabilitation specialist, a sanitarian and an outreach worker for the elderly.

In the Clinton neighborhood, which has at least 21 blocks of dirt streets, a 75% subsidy to property owners will be offered to encourage a comprehensive street paving program.

Low interest loans and grants will also be available for housing rehabilitation in the Clinton area.

About 81% of the homes in the Clinton neighborhood were built in 1939 or before, according to a Community Development Department survey. The area is between 19th and 33rd Sts. and from the Burlington tracks south to X St.

Other serious needs in the Clinton area, according to the application to HUD, are additional trees and landscaping, and improvement of Pentzer Park at 27th and Fair Sts.

The HUD grant is part of an estimated $8.9 million Lincoln is eligible to receive over the next five years for urban improvement projects.

Tourism Signs To Reappear

By The Associated Press
Those controversial tourist signs shall rise again — but this time in locations where the federal government won't complain about them.

The 42 tourist signs were removed from the Interstate right-of-way last June after Gov. J. James Exon lost a court fight with the Federal Highway Administration.

The federal government said the signs didn't conform to regulations, and had to come down unless the state wanted to lose several million dollars in highway funds.

The Department of Roads said Monday that about 10 of the signs will be up again by June 1. But they will be placed on state property outside the Interstate fences and near their old locations.

Some of the remaining 32 signs may be placed on private property if easements can be obtained, or on property owned by the Game and Parks Commission, the department said.

The tourist sign dispute led to sometimes heated exchanges between Exon and Federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann, the man who preceded Exon in the governor's chair.

Exon and state tourist officials said studies showed the signs were the largest single factor in influencing tourists to stop in Nebraska.

Exon took his case before U.S. District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom last summer, but Urbom ruled in the federal government's favor.

Exon had the signs taken down in June.

Lab Assistant Said 'Critical' After Explosion

A dental lab assistant was listed in critical condition Monday at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center after a can of alcohol exploded while she was filling a burner.

Connie Mohlman, 19, of 3310 P, ran in flames about 45 feet through the lab and down a corridor in the Professional Dental Arts Building, 144 N. 44th, after the explosion, according to fire inspector reports.

She was filling a burner with alcohol when fumes were apparently ignited by a bunsen burner nearby. The can exploded and showered her with flaming alcohol, inspectors said.

Workers in the lab extinguished the blaze with coats and a fire extinguisher after the woman ran, according to the inspectors.

False teeth and other dental equipment is made in the lab.

New York — An interesting combination deal is now being offered to higher income investors. It packages a municipal bond fund, selling at a considerable discount from face value, with a growth-stock fund. The idea is to provide you with maximum return at minimum tax — in this case, monthly tax-exempt income, a built-in capital gain on the bond site, and the possibility of capital gains on the stock side.

The deal was put together by Merrill Lynch, and combines their Municipal Income Fund (first insured discount series) with the Putnam Investors Fund. However, if you like the concept, you can probably put a similar combination together for yourself. Here's how the investment works: One unit of the combination deal costs $1,000, which buys municipal bonds with a face value of $1,000 but selling at quite a bit less than that in the marketplace.

A bond sells for less for a couple of reasons: (1) When it was first issued, interest rates were lower, hence, its price had to decline until the effective yield offered investors was competitive with today's rates. (2) The investment quality of the bond may have fallen, due a financial squeeze on its backer. Therefore, the price has to fall to attract investors. When a bond is selling considerably below its $1,000 face value it is called a deep-discount bond.

The bonds bought by the Municipal Income Fund were selling at an average of $745 last week, for a yield on the portfolio of 6.9%. So if you had put $1,000 into the fund at that time, $475 of it would have gone into deep discount bonds.

The remainder, $255, would have put into the Putnam Investors Fund, in hopes of capital appreciation.

Not counting any income you might get from Putnam, the annual yield on the entire package is 5.1% after expenses. The sales charge is 4% for the bond fund and 6% for the stock fund. Minimum investment is $3,000.

Some investors worry about deep discount bonds because they aren't sure which issuers will be able to pay off. Merrill Lynch has the entire bond portfolio (but not the stock fund) insured by MGIC Indemnity Corp. You are guaranteed timely interest and principal payments for the life of the fund (always assuming that MGIC stays in business). The price of the insurance premium lowers your yield fractionally, but presumably pays for itself in a sounder night's rest.

However, if this combination of investments sounds good to you, you have to ask yourself whether its worth paying Merrill Lynch to set it up. And whether you want the equity part of your portfolio to go into the Putnam Investors Fund.

Putnam Fund
To take the Putnam side first, this fund had an average annual compound growth rate (assuming dividends and capital gains are reinvested) of 5.6% over the past 10 calendar years, which is a respectable record as growth funds go. But, like other growth funds, it thrills you in "up" markets (back-to-back gains of 30% and 25% in 1971 and 1972), then breaks your heart on the downside (off 20% in 1973 and another 35% in 1974).

In recent years, it has been better to buy and sell growth funds as the market rises and falls — in which case you'd be better off with a no-load fund which doesn't hit you with a sales charge every time you buy back in.

On the bond side, there are a number of funds to choose from, both insured and uninsured. You could put any one of them together with a no-load stock fund to make your own combination deal. Or if you didn't care about the diversity of holdings that a mutual fund has to offer, you could buy your own portfolio of bonds. Brokerage charges vary, but you can usually buy municipals for something under one percent.

Anyone who buys his own municipals will find the Merrill Lynch prospectus interesting reading. It lists all the fund's bonds, which range in yield from 6 to 10.4%. You can use this as a shoppers guide to the deep discount bonds Merrill Lynch thinks well enough of to buy for capital gains, and that MGIC trusts enough to insure. That's still no guarantee, especially with the lower rated bonds, but its better than buying blind.

'Good' Tasted Choice

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"They look pretty much alike to me," said a homemaker as she surveyed six steaks — three good and three choice — laid out before her.

But when it came time to taste the beef — the table test — she knew right away. At least she thought she did.

"This one has to be choice," said the homemaker. "It's so tender, even though they have the same flavor."

In fact, she would have bet her bottom dollar that the tender, tasty steak was the choice cut.

But she was wrong. And so were most of the 12 consumers who gave top cut sirloin steaks the look and taste test in a non-scientific study conducted by The Star.

Ordinary people — men and women, the real customers of the cattleman and grocer — not a trained test panel or batch of home economists, were rounded up for the test.

They were asked to weed out the good, soon-to-be graded choice, steaks from today's choice.

The Star conducted the study to test livestock groups' and meat marketers' predictions that consumers wouldn't be able to tell the difference between the grades. The issue has been surrounded by controversy since the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced new beef grading standards that propose to move some high good grades into the choice grade.

Consumers and some meat packers have objected to the new grading standards on grounds that lower quality meat would be sold in stores, resulting in a consumer rip-off.

The judges had a hard time telling one grade from another before the steaks were cooked and even more difficulty when they tasted the finished product. In the first test, they managed to score an average of 50%; in the second, two-thirds were wrong.

For the test, The Star used the first three end cut sirloin steaks from each of two carcasses. The high good grade steaks were taken from a moderately aged young steer; the choice was aged, having been taken from an older animal. Both animals were grain fed.

The steaks were first displayed raw, supermarket style, because it's at the meat counter that the consumer makes his/her selection.

The consumers tackled their job — studying, contemplating, getting down to eye level to see if they could discern which were better marbled, choice steaks.

To some it was a guessing game. Cyril Bish, county agent with much experience in working with cattle and meats, dropped in to test his skill. He managed to guess the cut and cooked meat grades correctly. But he is no ordinary consumer.

And Allan Boettcher, who helped select the test cuts, was able to detect the difference after the fat was removed only by the wet appearance of the good cut — and he trains meat judging teams that consistently place high in competition.

But only two of the consumer judges came up with the right answers. "I don't believe it," said Toni Huff who spent longer than the others surveying the uncooked meat. The rest got only about half right.

The steaks then were cooked for the same period of time in an electric oven, and served in bite-sized hunks to the judges. All the testers were positive they had a handle on which was good, which was choice — after only one bite from each.

"This is so tough you can hardly chew it," said one, pointing to the sample she was certain was the good grade beef. "And this is so tender," she added, pointing this time to the other. Her fellow judges agreed: "You have to chew harder (on the 'good'). They taste the same. But they sure aren't equal in chewability."

All but four were wrong. It was the good steak that the majority favored, by a 2-1 margin. "It was better!" exclaimed a judge in disbelief.

"Oh boy, I just saved eight cents a pound," said a pleased Val Bohaty. The steaks cost $1.59 a pound for good; $1.67 a pound for choice.

"I am just going to hate to tell my husband he was right all these years . . . a high good grade of beef does eat as well or better than choice," said a homemaker.

Finally giving in, one judge concluded, "It just goes to show, you CAN fool the consumer."

New Standards For Prime Beef Mean Higher Consumer Prices

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The consumer and the cattleman have been playing a game in which the U.S. Department of Agriculture has not been an uninvolved bystander.

The farmer has been pouring dollars into grain to fatten up his cattle to increase the interior fat (called marbling) in the red portion of his meat and to add unnecessary — and unused — fat to the outside of the meat. His goal: Having the USDA grades "choice" or "prime" stamped on the meat. Along with those grades go higher prices.

But the consumer doesn't like to have, much less pay for, the unnecessary fat on beef — so it is carved off at the supermarket.

In view of the recent grain shortage, the USDA called "foul." The rules had to be changed.

The feds came up with a new grading system that would reduce the amount of fat in and around the red, edible portion of the meat for it to be graded choice.

That means some meat — up to 10% — currently graded good would be moved into the choice grade.

That also means the farmer would have to feed less grain to a steer in order to have it graded choice. Estimates of how much grain would be saved vary from 2 to 10 bushels per animal marketed. The difference in grain saved apparently stems from the wide variety in ages of animals marketed and the feeding methods.

The new grading system was to have begun April 14.

However, a court injunction issued by Omaha U.S. District 1 Judge Robert Denney delayed the change in the grading system.

Consumer groups have charged that the grade change would result in lower quality meat being sold in stores.

USDA meat graders contend that the change would reduce costs to farmers in producing meat which also would result in lower cost meat for consumers. The graders contend that few if any consumers would notice the difference in the meat counter because the excess fat required to meet grade standards is removed before the meat is sold. This creates waste, they say.

A packer group, however, charged that its members would be forced to increase meat grading costs adding to the cost of meat to the consumer.

A hearing that could settle the issue is scheduled to begin in Omaha May 12. The House Agriculture Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing and Consumer Relations has announced it will hold hearings May 21 and 22 on the proposed beef grading standards.

While the USDA meat grading service is not mandatory, it is used by most of the meat retail outlets in Lincoln, although a few stores use their own house grading systems.

USDA meat inspection is required but involves only the health of the meat animals. The meat grading service is a separate program paid for on a voluntary basis by meat packers.

"Consumers complain if fat is on the animal in the meat counter; they want it cut off. Now they are saying they don't want the grade changed, which indicates to me they don't know what they are complaining about," the president of a Nebraska-based beef packing company said.

Not all farm groups in the livestock business agree on whether the new grading system should be used. "We think the change on young cattle is good, but we question whether there should have been a reduction in the amount of marbling in older cattle," explained By Phillips of the National Livestock Feeders Association.

Dr. Paul Guyer, of the University of Nebraska Animal Science Department, said, "I can understand that objection but this is on older steers, and only a very small percentage of the cattle market today is that old. I suppose if we have a grain price disaster we could see 2-year-old cattle in the feedlot again, but I don't think it will happen," he said.

Gorden Van Vleck of the American National Cattleman's Association supports the grade change. "We favor the grading changes based on more than two years of research. The proposed changes will result in leaner, more desirable beef for consumers, and second, the changes give cattlemen an opportunity to be rewarded if they produce animals with more meat and less waste fat," he said.

"Consumer research has shown that the two major complaints about beef were revolving around prices and too much waste fat. The revised standards are positive steps toward dealing with both of these complaints," he said.

Van Vleck challenged the content, on that all the beef now grading good will grade choice under the new standards. "Only a minute part of the present good grade meat would be included in the new choice grade standards. It is totally misleading to say that the public will be paying higher prices for less desirable beef. In fact, the opposite is true," he said.

One packer said he fears the USDA would give up the effort to reduce the amount of fat in beef if the court case fails.

Most meat retailers in Lincoln sell only choice beef, a survey of several stores indicated. The few that offer good have a lower good grade to maximize the price difference between that and choice.

Only a high good carcass would be promoted to choice under the proposed grading change. A search of a dozen meat outlets in Lincoln produced only one carcass that would be moved from the high good grade to low choice under the proposed grading system.

Livestock groups and meat marketers agree that few, if any, consumers would be able to taste the difference between the new and old grading system. Some predicted homemakers would not detect the difference at the meat counter, either.

The USDA data published prior to the court action showed paid test panels were unable to detect a substantial difference in the meat graded under new and old grading systems.

Record Sales Steady But Concerts Weak

(c) New York Times News Service
New York — Has rock 'n' roll become rock 'n' recession?

Yes, say concert promoters, booking agents, managers and some music fans.

No, say record companies and stores. While those involved in arranging live performances of rock acts are singing the blues, record companies have not yet heard any really sour notes from their sales departments, a survey of the music business indicates.

The difference can probably be explained through prices and impulse buying. Faced with a smaller budget, a music fan is more likely to buy a record, which can be played over and over, then spend twice as much on a concert.

'Escape From Woes'

"Historically, people have always used entertainment as an escape from financial woes," said Phil Walden, who both heads Capricorn Records in Macon, Ga., and manages such acts as the Allman Brothers.

But he added that although buyers still seemed willing to buy records — "the cheapest form of entertainment you can get" — the concert market was "soft."

A sampling of promoters, club owners and booking agents across the country suggests that audiences for most concerts have been down as much as 25%, that performers are signing for smaller advance guarantees on concert dates, that more and more big acts are teaming up as co-headliners rather than touring on their own and that some groups are planning to hit smaller halls rather than risk appearing before half-empty bigger houses.

"Elton John could still sell out the Grand Canyon," said Barry Fey, a Denver promoter, "but the middle groups are hurting."

One reason is that fans are becoming more selective. Students on several campuses said they were saving their money for superstars these days while passing up the popular groups.

"Seeing Dylan is a once-in-a-lifetime experience," explained Fred Speck of the University of Illinois. "To be honest, I would have paid $25 to see him — but not the second time."

Last Refuge

Meanwhile, many students continue, some grudgingly, to treat music as the last refuge in a dreary period of economic gloom. As Rhodderic Giddens of Grambling put it, "Music is an abstract luxury that creates peace in our minds and that's worth paying for."

Inflation has been as responsible for more careful music purchases as the recession. Concert tickets have climbed from $4 and $5 to $6.50 and $7.50, with superstar shows costing $10. Record prices also went up last year, from $5.99 list to $6.98 list.

"It's caused me to use guerrilla tactics, such as buying records from a store, taping them and then returning them," remarked a Brooklyn College sophomore. He may be an extreme case, but the fact is that record buyers are currently getting less for their money.

The outlook for 1975 is uncertain. A spokesman for Columbia Records says the company envisions continuing strong album sales. But the concert scene for the later winter and spring looks bleak.

The recession has been a boon to some nightclubs and a disaster for others. New York's 400-seat Bottom Line, for example, has been able to get such as the Raspberries and the Guess Who, groups that used to play 2,000-seat concert halls.

Fewer Opportunities

What does this mean to the musicians? For new performers, it means a diminution of opportunities to record, to get large advance contracts and to do long tours that help them get noticed.

For middle-range groups, according to Budd Carr of International Creative Management and Frank Barsalona of Premier Talent, two leading booking agents, it means taking $1,000 to $2,500 less in profits from each concert date.

Oxnard Gutsie's Bark Bad As Bite

DEAR ABBY: I got a kick out of the woman who took an extra large second helping and then asked for a "doggie bag" to take her leftovers home with her.

It reminded me of the time I prepared a sumptuous spread for three couples. (I love to cook.) One woman phoned just a few minutes before the time she should have arrived to ask if she and her husband could bring a friend and to inform me that they would be a "little late."

The three of them arrived an hour and 15 minutes later — half gassed.

Well, this late broad said she wasn't hungry, but everything looked so good she wondered if I'd give her a doggie bag.

I said, "I have my OWN doggie, and I am it. Therefore, I do not provide my guests with doggie bags. Also, people who have the bad manners to show up an hour and 15 minutes late don't deserve any consideration, and this is the last time you'll be invited here!"

The other guests were somewhat uptight about the confrontation, but the only way to treat people with guts is to out-guts them.

GUTSIE IN OXNARD

DEAR GUTSIE: Your bark is as bad as your bite. But you can give lessons on how to end an undesirable friendship.

DEAR ABBY: I have often wanted to write to you, but never had a reason until now. My problem is my mother. She wants surgery done on her "grapes" to have them enlarged to about grapefruit size.

My father keeps saying no — he likes her dried raisins the way they are. Mom disagrees and is willing to give up a vacation in order to have the surgery done. It all started as a joke, but it turns out that Mom is dead serious. She's even underlined the plastic surgeon's name in the phone book. She says she wants something BIG for her 40th birthday.

How do you feel about the situation?

DEAR GRAPENUTS: If this would be good for your mother's morale — why not? I only hope that she and your father can agree on a fruit that's not forbidden.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we went out to dinner with two other couples. When the check came, one of the men insisted on paying for everything with his credit card (obviously his company's). Then he collected the cash from the rest of us.

I have been told that he does this all the time. How does a person go about putting a stop to this sort of thing? I don't like to be used as a "customer." And knowing that he uses us as so-called business write-offs when we are just social friends makes me feel like a party to something dishonest.

Any suggestions?

USED IN CHICAGO
DEAR USED: If you are certain that your friend is using you in this manner, either tell him you won't go along with it or quit going along with HIM.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old, newly-married girl with a problem I can't handle.

When my parents come for an evening's visit, they never seem to know when it's time to go home. My husband has to get up at 5:45 A.M. and I get up to prepare his breakfast, so we like to go to bed before midnight. But how can we with my folks sitting here?

Our hints about how "tired" we are and how early we have to get up seem to fall on deaf ears. We can't just turn off the lights and leave them sitting here, can we?

While I'm complaining, I might add that even though I always serve refreshments, my father and mother both raid the refrigerator and pantry later and think nothing of looking in all my drawers. They bring my little brother over (he's 2-years-old) and let him do whatever he pleases. Last week he emptied a quart of oil on our brand new carpet.

Can a daughter tell her parents how to act?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: She shouldn't have to. But in your case, I'd make an exception. Tell them respectfully when they arrive what your bedtime is. And make it stick. Also, keep your eye on your little brother, since no one else seems to. And lotsa luck, Honey. You need it.

Opening lead — king of spades.

because of an unlucky division of the cards, but some of them can be salvaged by cautious play.

Consider this deal where, if you look at all four hands, it would seem that South must go down one. The hearts break 3-1, so that a trump trick must be lost, and the club finesse, if and when attempted, fails. These losers, on top of the two inevitable spade losers, make it appear that declarer cannot escape going down one.

But if South plays his cards as he should, he makes the contract. Furthermore, the right line of play does not depend on peeking at the East-West cards; normal play will do the job.

When dummy comes down, South sees that the outcome depends on either losing no trump trick or losing no club trick. Declarer has no control over the trump division, but has some control over the club situation.

In an effort to avoid the club finesse — which might lose — South wins the spade lead and plays the ace of diamonds, followed by the A-K of hearts. Upon learning that East has a trump trick, declarer cashes the king of diamonds, discarding a spade, and ruffs the jack of diamonds in dummy.

The stage is now set for the winning play. Ignoring the club finesse, South leads a spade from dummy! West takes his two spade tricks but must then play a club from his king or yield a ruff and discard. Either way, South comes home free. His only losers are two spades and a trump. The club finesse, despite its magnetic attraction, never enters the picture at all.

The steaks then were cooked for the same period of time in an electric oven, and served in bite-sized hunks to the judges. All the testers were positive they had a handle on which was good, which was choice — after only one bite from each.

"This is so tough you can hardly chew it," said one, pointing to the sample she was certain was the good grade beef. "And this is so tender," she added, pointing this time to the other. Her fellow judges agreed: "You have to chew harder (on the 'good')." They taste the same. But they sure aren't equal in chewability.

All but four were wrong. It was the good steak that the majority favored, by a 2-1 margin. "It was better!" exclaimed a judge in disbelief.

"Oh boy, I just saved eight cents a pound," said a pleased Val Bohaty. The steaks cost $1.59 a pound for good; $1.67 a pound for choice.

"I am just going to hate to tell my husband he was right all these years . . . a high good grade of beef does eat as well or better than choice," said a homemaker.

Finally giving in, one judge concluded, "It just goes to show, you CAN fool the consumer."

New Standards For Prime Beef Mean Higher Consumer Prices

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The consumer and the cattleman have been playing a game in which the U.S. Department of Agriculture has not been an uninvolved bystander.

The farmer has been pouring dollars into grain to fatten up his cattle to increase the interior fat (called marbling) in the red portion of his meat and to add unnecessary — and unused — fat to the outside of the meat. His goal: Having the USDA grades "choice" or "prime" stamped on the meat. Along with those grades go higher prices.

But the consumer doesn't like to have, much less pay for, the unnecessary fat on beef — so it is carved off at the supermarket.

In view of the recent grain shortage, the USDA called "foul." The rules had to be changed.

The feds came up with a new grading system that would reduce the amount of fat in and around the red, edible portion of the meat for it to be graded choice.

That means some meat — up to 10% — currently graded good would be moved into the choice grade.

That also means the farmer would have to feed less grain to a steer in order to have it graded choice. Estimates of how much grain would be saved vary from 2 to 10 bushels per animal marketed. The difference in grain saved apparently stems from the wide variety in ages of animals marketed and the feeding methods.

The new grading system was to have begun April 14.

However, a court injunction issued by Omaha U.S. District 1 Judge Robert Denney delayed the change in the grading system.

Consumer groups have charged that the grade change would result in lower quality meat being sold in stores.

USDA meat graders contend that the change would reduce costs to farmers in producing meat which also would result in lower cost meat for consumers. The graders contend that few if any consumers would notice the difference in the meat counter because the excess fat required to meet grade standards is removed before the meat is sold. This creates waste, they say.

A packer group, however, charged that its members would be forced to increase meat grading costs adding to the cost of meat to the consumer.

A hearing that could settle the issue is scheduled to begin in Omaha May 12. The House Agriculture Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing and Consumer Relations has announced it will hold hearings May 21 and 22 on the proposed beef grading standards.

While the USDA meat grading service is not mandatory, it is used by most of the meat retail outlets in Lincoln, although a few stores use their own house grading systems.

USDA meat inspection is required but involves only the health of the meat animals. The meat grading service is a separate program paid for on a voluntary basis by meat packers.

"Consumers complain if fat is on the animal in the meat counter; they want it cut off. Now they are saying they don't want the grade changed, which indicates to me they don't know what they are complaining about," the president of a Nebraska-based beef packing company said.

Not all farm groups in the livestock business agree on whether the new grading system should be used. "We think the change on young cattle is good, but we question whether there should have been a reduction in the amount of marbling in older cattle," explained By Phillips of the National Livestock Feeders Association.

Dr. Paul Guyer, of the University of Nebraska Animal Science Department, said, "I can understand that objection but this is on older steers, and only a very small percentage of the cattle market today is that old. I suppose if we have a grain price disaster we could see 2-year-old cattle in the feedlot again, but I don't think it will happen," he said.

Gorden Van Vleck of the American National Cattleman's Association supports the grade change. "We favor the grading changes based on more than two years of research. The proposed changes will result in leaner, more desirable beef for consumers, and second, the changes give cattlemen an opportunity to be rewarded if they produce animals with more meat and less waste fat," he said.

"Consumer research has shown that the two major complaints about beef were revolving around prices and too much waste fat. The revised standards are positive steps toward dealing with both of these complaints," he said.

Van Vleck challenged the content; on that all the beef now grading good will grade choice under the new standards. "Only a minute part of the present good grade meat would be included in the new choice grade standards. It is totally misleading to say that the public will be paying higher prices for less desirable beef. In fact, the opposite is true," he said.

One packer said he fears the USDA would give up the effort to reduce the amount of fat in beef if the court case fails.

Most meat retailers in Lincoln sell only choice beef, a survey of several stores indicated. The few that offer good have a lower good grade to maximize the price difference between that and choice.

Only a high good carcass would be promoted to choice under the proposed grading change. A search of a dozen meat outlets in Lincoln produced only one carcass that would be moved from the high good grade to low choice under the proposed grading system.

Livestock groups and meat marketers agree that few, if any, consumers would be able to taste the difference between the new and old grading system. Some predicted homemakers would not detect the difference at the meat counter, either.

The USDA data published prior to the court action showed paid test panels were unable to detect a substantial difference in the meat graded under new and old grading systems.

Record Sales Steady But Concerts Weak

(c) New York Times News Service

New York — Has rock 'n' roll become rock 'n' recession? Yes, say concert promoters, booking agents, managers and some music fans.

No, say record companies and stores.

While those involved in arranging live performances of rock acts are singing the blues, record companies have not yet heard any really sour notes from their sales departments, a survey of the music business indicates.

The difference can probably be explained through prices and impulse buying. Faced with a smaller budget, a music fan is more likely to buy a record, which can be played over and over, then spend twice as much on a concert.

'Escape From Woes'

"Historically, people have always used entertainment as an escape from financial woes," said Phil Walden, who both heads Capricorn Records in Macon, Ga., and manages such acts as the Allman Brothers.

But he added that although buyers still seemed willing to buy records — "the cheapest form of entertainment you can get" — the concert market was "soft."

A sampling of promoters, club owners and booking agents across the country suggests that audiences for most concerts have been down as much as 25%, that performers are signing for smaller advance guarantees on concert dates, that more and more big acts are teaming up as co-headliners rather than touring on their own and that some groups are planning to hit smaller halls rather than risk appearing before half-empty bigger houses.

"Elton John could still sell out the Grand Canyon," said Barry Fey, a Denver promoter, "but the middle groups are hurting."

One reason is that fans are becoming more selective. Students on several campuses said they were saving their money for superstars these days while passing up less popular groups.

"Seeing Dylan is a once-in-a-lifetime experience," explained Fred Speck of the University of Illinois. "To be honest, I would have paid $25 to see him — but not the second time."

Last Refuge

Meanwhile, many students continue, some grudgingly, to treat music as the last refuge in a dreary period of economic gloom. As Rhodderic Giddens of Grambling put it, "Music is an abstract luxury that creates peace in our minds and that's worth paying for."

Inflation has been as responsible for more careful music purchases as the recession. Concert tickets have climbed from $4 and $5 to $6.50 and $7.50, with superstar shows costing $10. Record prices also went up last year, from $5.69 list to $6.98 list.

"It's caused me to use guerrilla tactics, such as buying records from a store, taping them and then returning them," remarked a Brooklyn College sophomore. He may be an extreme case, but the fact is that record buyers are currently getting less for their money.

The outlook for 1975 is uncertain. A spokesman for Columbia Records says the company envisions continuing strong album sales. But the concert scene for the later winter and spring looks bleak.

The recession has been a boon to some nightclubs and a disaster for others. New York's 400-seat Bottom Line, for example, has been able to get such as the Raspberries and the Guess Who, groups that used to play 2,000-seat concert halls.

Fewer Opportunities

What does this mean to the musicians? For new performers, it means a diminution of opportunities to record, to get large advance contracts and to do long tours that help them get noticed.

For middle-range groups, according to Budd Carr of International Creative Management and Frank Barsalona of Premier Talent, two leading booking agents, it means taking $1,000 to $2,500 less in profits from each concert date.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I got a kick out of the woman who took an extra large second helping and then asked for a "doggie bag" to take her leftovers home with her.

It reminded me of the time I prepared a sumptuous spread for three couples. (I love to cook.) One woman phoned just a few minutes before the time she should have arrived to ask if she and her husband could bring a friend and to inform me that they would be a "little late."

The three of them arrived an hour and 15 minutes later — half gassed.

Well, this late broad said she wasn't hungry, but everything looked so good she wondered if I'd give her a doggie bag.

I said, "I have my OWN doggie, and I am it. Therefore, I do not provide my guests with doggie bags. Also, people who have the bad manners to show up an hour and 15 minutes late don't deserve any consideration, and this is the last time you'll be invited here!"

The other guests were somewhat uptight about the confrontation, but the only way to treat people with guts is to out-guts them.

GUTSIE IN OXNARD

DEAR GUTSIE: Your bark is as bad as your bite. But you can give lessons on how to end an undesirable friendship.

DEAR ABBY: I have often wanted to write to you, but never had a reason until now. My problem is my mother. She wants surgery done on her "grapes" to have them enlarged to about grapefruit size.

My father keeps saying no — he likes her dried raisins the way they are. Mom disagrees and is willing to give up a vacation in order to have the surgery done.

It all started as a joke, but it turns out that Mom is dead serious. She's even underlined the plastic surgeon's name in the phone book. She says she wants something BIG for her 40th birthday.

How do you feel about the situation?

DEAR GRAPENUTS: If this would be good for your mother's morale — why not? I only hope that she and your father can agree on a fruit that's not forbidden.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we went out to dinner with two other couples. When the check came, one of the men insisted on paying for everything with his credit card (obviously his company's). Then he collected the cash from the rest of us.

I have been told that he does this all the time. How does a person go about putting a stop to this sort of thing? I don't like to be used as a "customer." And knowing that he uses us as so-called business write-offs when we are just social friends makes me feel like a party to something dishonest.

Any suggestions?

USED IN CHICAGO

DEAR USED: If you are certain that your friend is using you in this manner, either tell him you won't go along with it or quit going along with HIM.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old, newly-married girl with a problem I can't handle.

When my parents come for an evening's visit, they never seem to know when it's time to go home. My husband has to get up at 5:45 AM, and I get up to prepare his breakfast, so we like to go to bed before midnight. But how can we with my folks sitting here?

Our hints about how "tired" we are and how early we have to get up seem to fall on deaf ears. We can't just turn off the lights and leave them sitting here, can we?

While I'm complaining, I might add that even though I always serve refreshments, my father and mother both raid the refrigerator and pantry later and think nothing of looking in all my drawers. They bring my little brother over (he's 2-years-old) and let him do whatever he pleases. Last week he emptied a quart of oil on our brand new carpet.

Many south contracts fail

because of an unlucky division of the cards, but some of them can be salvaged by cautious play.

Consider this deal where, if you look at all four hands, it would seem that South must go down one. The hearts break 3-1, so that a trump trick must be lost, and the club finesse, if and when attempted, fails. These losers, on top of the two inevitable spade losers, make it appear that declarer cannot escape going down one.

But if South plays his cards as he should, he makes the contract. Furthermore, the right line of play does not depend on peeking at the East-West cards; normal play will do the job.

When dummy comes down, South sees that the outcome depends on either losing no trump trick or losing no club trick. Declarer has no control over the trump division, but has some control over the club situation.

In an effort to avoid the club finesse — which might lose — South wins the spade lead and plays the ace of diamonds, followed by the A-K of hearts. Upon learning that East has a trump trick, declarer cashes the king of diamonds, discarding a spade, and ruffs the jack of diamonds in dummy.

The stage is now set for the winning play. Ignoring the club finesse, South leads a spade from dummy! West takes his two spade tricks but must then play a club from his king or yield a ruff and discard.

Either way, South comes home free. His only losers are two spades and a trump. The club finesse, despite its magnetic attraction, never enters the picture at all.

Legislators Reject Schmit Plan To Hike ADC

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Monday rejected Sen. Loran Schmit's proposal to establish the rate of payments for aid to dependent children at the amount required to meet the minimum standards of health and decency set by the Department of Public Welfare.

The immediate effect of the Schmit plan would have been to boost maximum ADC payments beyond the increase already approved by the 1975 Legislature.

In lieu of the Schmit proposal, lawmakers approved Sen. Steve Fowler's suggestion that unborn children be eligible for ADC payments.

Rewritten 26-0

Schmit's bill, LB397, was rewritten into the Fowler proposal on a 26-0 vote, and then advanced from first stage floor consideration on a 27-0 count.

The key vote, however, came when Schmit lost a bid to amend the bill to require ADC payments to match the amount established by the department as minimum family needs.

Needing 25 votes, his motion fell on a 16-15 count.

The state should not pay less than minimum needs, Schmit argued.

$210 Maximum

Under the ADC increase approved earlier this year in a bill sponsored by Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln, a parent and one child would be eligible for a maximum payment of $210 a month.

That compares with a minimum standard need of $230.

A family of three would receive up to $252 under the Simpson bill. The Schmit plan would raise that maximum to $279.

A family of four would receive up to $294 a month under the Simpson bill, and $328 under the Schmit proposal.

Altogether, Schmit estimated, his proposal would add about $500,000 in state tax costs to the ADC program.

Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha argued that the Schmit proposal represented "a blank check in welfare payments (which) could bankrupt the State of Nebraska."

The department, in effect, would establish ADC payments by changing its minimum standards of need, leaving the Legislature with "no control over costs," Goodrich said.

Already, he said, some public assistance recipients are "at a point where they can make more on welfare than working for a living."

Is an ADC mother "not entitled to raise her children," leaving them to others while she works, Sen. John Cavanaugh III of Omaha wondered.

Many recipients have inadequate qualifications to find jobs, Schmit said.

49% Working

But the fact is, Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln told Goodrich, about 49% of the state's ADC mothers are currently employed.

Under the Fowler amendment, pregnant ADC mothers can count their unborn child as an ADC dependent.

Whereas a parent and one child are now eligible for a maximum monthly payment of $210, each additional child is eligible for $42 a month.

Fowler said a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision left it to each state to decide whether to include unborn children as ADC recipients.

If the child is to be healthy at birth, Fowler noted, his pregnant mother needs sufficient nutrition and care. Less than 1% of the ADC cases would be affected by the addition, the Lincoln lawmaker said.

2 Senators Differ On Tax Estimates

By The Associated Press

If the Legislature doesn't move to slow the pace of spending there is only a "dim" chance that the state can get by with a 30% hike in the personal income tax, according to Sen. Cal Carsten, chairman of the Revenue Committee.

However, Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel said he felt there was a "good chance" that the Legislature would stay within spending limits that could be met by the 13% income tax and 2 1/2% sales tax recommended by Gov. J. James Exon.

Asked why he was optimistic about trimming spending, Marvel said "because I am going to stand up and fight" to curb legislative spending.

The state's personal income tax is now at 10% of federal income tax obligation. The state sales tax is 2 1/2%, with Omaha, Lincoln and Bellevue adding 1% to that locally. Exon has proposed hiking the income tax

Insurance Policy Loans Will Continue At 6% Rate

By United Press International

The heavily lobbied and much debated measure to increase from 6 to 8% the interest charge on loans made against the cash values of insurance policies was killed for the second time in the current session Monday.

After the proposal, sponsored by Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha, was killed the first time, he was successful in mustering enough support for its revival.

"We reconsidered because the bill has merit," Stoney said shortly before the kill vote carried. Sen. Jack Mills of Big Springs asked that the bill be put to rest and his request carried, 18-12.

Adams Sen. George Burrows said the measure, LB528, "will raise interest rates on the next generation and would be a rip-off of our own children."

Stoney said the bill would not affect existing policies and as amended would provide that the amount of interest that could be charged on future policies would have to be specified in each policy. The 6% rate, he said, favors the "sophisticated, fat cat policy holder at the expense of the little man."

Stoney had made the same argument previously. Monday, Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha offered an amendment providing that the interest rate for policies below $50,000 would carry a 6% rate and those over $50,000 an 8% rate.

The Cavanaugh suggestion was rejected after Stoney claimed it would not be workable, would affect only a few policies and could be "discriminatory."

During the long debate, Cavanaugh said the bill was part of a national program of insurance companies which are trying to get the interest rates raised in all states.

Also turned down were amendments calling for:

- Dividends to be computed at not less than 3.5% annually.
- Allowable interest charges of 8% by mutual companies and 6% by stock companies.
- Doubling the interest charge to 12%.
- Lowering the interest rate to 5%.

Reform Drive Eyed By Common Cause

Following the lead of other states, Common Cause in Nebraska is considering an initiative petition drive to write into law a governmental reform measure.

The proposal would institute campaign finance reforms, tighten lobbying disclosures and conflict-of-interest laws and strengthen Nebraska's open meetings requirements.

An independent citizens enforcement commission would be created to audit disclosure reports from lobbyists, candidates and public officials.

Whether Common Cause decides to proceed with its attempt to gather the 32,000 signatures required to place the proposal on the 1976 general election ballot will depend largely on the 1975 Legislature.

A Common Cause newsletter suggests that the drive awaits a decision on "whether the Legislature acts favorably on measure supported by Common Cause this session."

Awaiting action as priority bills on the floor of the Unicameral are measures to tighten lobbying disclosures and strengthen open meetings laws.

Petitions have been drafted for the initiative drive. Preliminary organizational plans have been prepared.

And a draft proposal of a comprehensive measure "designed to prevent the corruption of public officials" is in preparation.

Common Cause members will discuss the proposed initiative at a state meeting in Lincoln May 17.

Californians adopted a political reform initiative last year. Common Cause is at work on similar proposals in five other states.

Blair, Swanson Are Confirmed

The Nebraska Legislature Monday confirmed the appointments of Charles E. Blair of Hastings to the Nebraska Investment Council and Dr. Jack Swanson of Wahoo to the State Health Board.

Marvel Says Unicam Can't Approve Funds

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings Monday said the Legislature cannot legally appropriate construction funds for a University of Nebraska plant sciences facility this year.

Pointing to a 1974 law which requires a program statement to be submitted outlining plans for a proposed facility before construction money can be appropriated, Marvel said a plant sciences program submission has not yet been forthcoming.

"It's the law," Marvel told members of the Appropriations Committee.

NU has asked for a $6.8 million appropriation to construct the building. Since that request was submitted, the project has been revised into a proposed complex whose cost would range up to $14 million.

Gov. J. James Exon has recommended a $20,000 appropriation to prepare a program statement during fiscal 1975-76. No funding has been provided by the legislative fiscal office.

Pending when the committee adjourned its Monday meeting was a motion from Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Ute directing NU to prepare a program statement by Nov. 1.

Although the 1974 law requires a program statement, the Legislature could appropriate construction funds for any project by waiving those restrictions since its 1975 appropriations bills also have the effect of law.

Limit On School Spending Could Be Unconstitutional

By The Associated Press

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas issued an opinion Monday saying the lid the Legislature placed on the expenditures of school districts last year may be unconstitutional.

The Legislature placed the lid on school spending when it attempted to inject an additional $100 million in state money into the local school system budgets.

But voters rejected the state aid to schools increase in a referendum vote in November.

However, the school districts were stuck with the spending lid which limits their increases to certain formulas based on the consumer price index and the wholesale price index.

The attorney general's opinion said it was unconstitutional for the Legislature to delegate its authority to the officials making up the cost of living and wholesale price figures.

The opinion, written by Asst. Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher, suggested that the Legislature amend the budget lid to make it constitutional.

Mosher said the U.S. Departments of Commerce and Labor could change the formulas they use to make up their reports. He said that would make the law an unconstitutional delegation of authority to the federal agencies.

Crete Base Ruled Out For Drug Center Site

The Legislature Monday ruled out the Crete missile base as the site for a chemical dependency facility for correctional inmates.

On a 25-0 vote, lawmakers rewrote LB553 to eliminate the proposed Crete site and to repeal an earlier $118,200 appropriation to purchase and renovate the facility.

Instead, lawmakers adopted amendments appropriating $25,000 to the Department of Correctional Services to develop a program statement and physical plans for a chemical dependency unit at some other site.

The department is to give first consideration to land adjoining the Men's Reformatory in Lincoln.

Crete had been proposed as a site by the Exon administration, but a delegation of Crete citizens convinced the Legislature's Appropriations Committee that the facility should not be located near their community.

The effect of Monday's action will be to delay establishment of a facility by at least one year.

That concerned Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, who said he may wish to reinstate a larger appropriation so the facility can be developed at a different site during the current fiscal year.

LB553 cleared its initial floor hurdle on a 26-0 vote.

Plan Would Make State Liable In Pioneer Case

By The Associated Press

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh Monday launched an attempt to make the state liable for any misfeasance by state officials in the handling of Pioneer Insurance Co.

DeCamp offered amendments to a bill which is designed to make all insurance companies liable when a company becomes insolvent.

Action on DeCamp's amendments to LB217 was delayed until Wednesday.

His amendments would shift the responsibility from the other insurance companies to the state if it were found that state officials were guilty of misfeasance.

Ambulance Regulatory Bill OKd

By The Associated Press

On a vote of 35-3, the Legislature Monday passed a bill to regulate ambulance attendants and owners.

The bill, LB418, would set up a Board of Ambulance Advisors which would approve regulations established by the State Health Department.

The board could regulate the design, construction, equipment, sanitation, operation and maintenance of ambulances. All ambulances would have to be licensed by July 1, 1976. Ambulances would have to be inspected annually.

The board would also be allowed to approve minimum basic standards for ambulance attendants. All ambulances would have to carry a licensed attendant or a registered nurse or doctor.

The board would be made up of six volunteer ambulance operators, one private ambulance operator, two local government ambulance operators, one doctor, one hospital administrator and one citizen.

The members would be appointed by the governor. Candidates for the six volunteer slots would be nominated by the State Volunteer Firemen's Association.

The nominating provision was a point of contention with urban senators who wanted professional firemen on the board.

The Legislature also voted approval for a bill which would allow technical community colleges to buy one lot a year to build homes as vocational education projects. LB371 passed on a vote of 33-5.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Tuesday

Virgo can become a fanatic about "being of service." Families and friends of these natives find it easy to take advantage — because very often Virgo seems to be asking for it. New starts, fresh experiences, creative opportunities are now in store for many born under this zodiacal sign. Virgo will learn lessons of how to be creatively selfish. The stance of Virgo will be one of added independence. July will be a profitable month.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Accent on travel study, concern with religion and philosophy. You must remember promises to older family members. Slight delay will be more than compensated by bridge of goodwill — and love. Some of your fondest desires are on brink of fulfillment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You find ways of improving tax schedule, insurance arrangements and dialogue on surface indications. Find reasons. Remember resolutions concerning special facilities. Means get down to business!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Lie low — play waiting game — especially where legalities enter picture. Spotlight is on partnership, marriage, public relations and co-operative efforts. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio figure prominently. You will be engaged in fine points reading between the lines.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Accent is on what is basic essential without frills. Be prepared for key changes. Individual who seemed always to be "numorous" may be very serious. Evaluate. Take nothing for granted. Get necessary data — and analyze it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Romantic interests coincide now with creative activities. You meet people, go places and "do things." Means you are more vigorous than in recent days. Taurus, Libra persons play prominent roles. Family member makes gesture of goodwill — and love.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Real estate, property values, shelters tend now to dominate your personal scene. Another Virgo — and a Piscean — figure in picture. Key is to see in light of actuality rather than fantasy or wishful thinking. Don't expect something for nothing. In turn be sure you obtain collateral.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Ideas could pay off — if you combine experience with enthusiasm. Means accept counsel of one who has traveled path. Don't permit pride to block progress. Capricorn. Cancer persons figure prominently. Short trip may be on agenda.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Accent is on getting better distribution, advertising product, communitating ideas. Money assets, expenditures and collections can figure in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Obstacles to new start are cleared — you can afford to be more independent. Highlight individuality, personality and mode of dress. Make your presence known. It is no longer necessary to take back seat. Start a project!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are given information which can be transformed into profit. Deal with organizations, institutions. Make application for grants, special rights and permissions. Rid yourself of needless fears and doubts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Social activity, accolades. More people desire your presence. You are flattered, wind and dined. Have fun without necessarily believing everything you hear. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Some who make promises may not have authority to carry through on commitments. Know it and protect your interests. One in charge may suffer setback. Be available to fill in to help correct situation.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are more intuitive than most. You are a natural teacher, a loyal friend and a fierce opponent. New starts are favored this year with July indicated as an outstanding month. Aquarians play important roles in your life. You are due for a new life, more independent and creative. Don't fear it — cherish the change!

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
